18TH YEAR. NO 75 EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1901. TWO CENTS.

SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION COMES TO A CLOSE TODAY

Junior Mechanics Elect Officers and Transact Much Business.

TO MEET AT URBANA NEXT

Resolutions of Sympathy For President and Condemning Anarchists.

COMPLETE HARMONY PREVAILS

Per Capita Tax Increased—Conditions of the Order in General—Rain Interfered With the Rock Springs Park Program.

The present session of the state council, Jr. O. U. A. M., is the most harmonious ever held in the history of the order, and this fact has excited much comment since the convention has been in session.

Although this is the twenty-ninth time the state organization has been in session, the oldest member cannot remember when there was a more harmonious gathering than the one now assembled. It would seem that they were all of one mind. There has not been a single hitch since the state council was rapped to order on Tuesday morning.

The forenoon session of the Juniors was taken up for the most part in the consideration of important resolutions.

The election of state officers resulted as follows:

State Councillor—Reinard Schwald, No. 324, Cincinnati.

Vice councillor—E. W. Funk, Findlay.

Treasurer—H. L. Wenner, No. 136, Tiffin.

Conductor—A. W. Duncan, No. 8, East Liverpool.

Warden—J. T. Ballinger, No. 14, Pain City.

Inside sentinel—J. M. Howenstein, No. 179, Pierce.

Outside sentinel—J. C. Nichols, No. 206, Marion.

Chaplain—Rev. J. G. Miller, No. 127, Westchester.

National representative—John A. Bliss, No. 70, Canton.

When the selection of a place for holding the next convention came up Urbana was an easy winner.

On behalf of the state council, Dr. S. O. Giffin, deputy national councillor, in a neat speech presented the retiring councillor with a handsome gold emblem of the order.

The newly elected officers were then installed, J. Royal Snyder, of Canton, acting as installing officer.

The convention adjourned at 1 o'clock. This afternoon was spent in inspecting the Taylor, Smith & Taylor pottery on the Southside and the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles plant in this city.

Tomorrow morning the Hamilton county delegation will go to Pittsburg, where they will visit the exposition. They will return to East Liverpool Friday morning and start on their return trip.

A majority of the delegates will leave the city this evening and tomorrow morning.

Hamilton county was reported to have caucussed last night in an uptown hall, but it was impossible to learn the nature of the business transacted. It is said they made a slate and all pledged themselves to support it, but this was denied.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON

IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS WERE ADOPTED.

A Great Deal of Business Disposed of Harmoniously.

When the Tuesday afternoon session was called to order by State Councillor Davis the organization was reminded that other state councils were in session at the same time, and fraternal greetings were at once sent by wire to the state ladies in session in Maine, Georgia, West Virginia and Missouri.

It has been customary in recent years to print the reports of the state officers in pamphlet form. These are prepared previous to the state meeting and all delegates are provided with a copy upon their arrival at the meeting place. This mode greatly facilitates matters and enables the delegates to have a clear conception of the subject matter contained in the reports before they are called upon to vote upon them. Therefore, when the report of the state council was ready for adoption or rejection the members of the convention had an idea as to what they were voting upon. The document was adopted unanimously and that of the state secretary was taken up. It also was adopted without parley.

When the reports had been adopted the following telegrams, which had been received in the meantime, were read to the convention:

"Jonesboro, Ind., Sept. 10.

"J. G. A. Richter, S. C. eSc'y.

"On behalf of the board of officers of the National Council, I congratulate your State Council for past achievements, and extend best wishes for the future.

"AMOS L. CRAY, N. C."

"Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 10.

"The State Council of West Virginia, in harmonious session assembled, send fraternal greetings to the State Council of Ohio.

"BECK SHRIVER, S. C. S."

A committee from the Daughters of America, consisting of Dr. Nellie Hampton, Mrs. Faishel and Mrs. Monaghan, was then received and given permission to extend fraternal greetings. Miss Hampton had been made spokesman for the delegates and her speech was at once forceful and eloquent.

Dr. H. L. Wenner, of Tiffin, was delegated to respond, and did so in a manner which was both amusing and edifying.

The report of the board of officers was then submitted and was adopted as printed.

A proposition to raise the per capita tax from 56 to 60 cents was laid before the organization, and after some discussion was adopted.

The report of the finance committee as it appeared in pamphlet form was presented and adopted.

Then came the question over which it was expected a great deal of trouble would be raised.

At the death of Geo. W. Hirst, state vice councillor, a successor in the person of Reinhard Schwald was appointed by the state councillor. It was necessary for the state body to confirm or disapprove the selection, and when it came up yesterday a great many of the Hamilton county delegates expected trouble, but it did not come. The ratification of the action of State Councillor Davis was as readily accomplished as the many other matters over which trouble had been anticipated. The motion was carried unanimously.

It had been arranged at the morning session to open the nomination at a certain time, and that point in the proceedings having arrived, this order of business was proceeded with. The various candidates had their supporters, as was evidenced by the hearty nominating speeches and equally hearty seconds. The nominees from which the delegates were called upon to make a choice today were as follows:

For state councillor—Reinhard Schwald, Cincinnati.

For state vice councillor—E. W. Funk, Findlay.

State treasurer—Dr. H. L. Wenner, Tiffin.

State conductor—A. W. Duncan, East Liverpool; J. W. Penrose, Canton.

State warden—J. T. Ballinger, Plain City.

State inside sentinel—J. M. Howenstein, Pierce, P. O.

State outside sentinel—J. C. Nichols, Marion; W. W. Officer, Girard; E. C. Lindsay, Ravenna.

State chaplain—Rev. J. G. Miller, West Chester.

State representative to the national convention—J. E. Anderson, East Liverpool; G. W. Swetzer, Marion.

There were three candidates for the next place of meeting, Urbana, Tiffin and Canal Dover. Any one of the three would be preferable to East Liverpool in the matter of accommodations. This question was voted upon at the same time the officers were elected.

When the resolution committee reported the first matter recommended for adoption was the following:

Whereas, This nation has been appalled by the recent attempt to assassinate our chief executive, and our splendid and time honored liberties, with all which those liberties imply, seem made to depend on the caprice of men who have been allowed to come

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY IS STEADILY GAINING

Every Report From Buffalo of a Most Encouraging Nature—Taking and Relishing Nourishment.

Buffalo, Sept. 11. 3 p. m.—(Special)—The president is slowly improving. Conditions today are much better than yesterday.

Buffalo, 9 a. m.—The following bulletin has just been issued: The president rested comfortably during the night. Decided benefit has followed the dressing of his wound last night. His stomach now tolerates beef juice well, and it is taken with great satisfaction. His condition this morning is excellent. Pulse, 116; temperature, 100; respiration, 28.

Buffalo, 11 a. m.—A consultation of physicians was held this forenoon, concluding at 9:26. Doctors coming from the house reported conditions favorable. Dr. Mynter said the operation of last night had certainly been beneficial, and he considered all indications good. Yet he said the president would be doing well if his condition were such that he could leave Buffalo in the next six weeks.

BIG CONVENTION OF THE D. OF A.

Meeting Here the Largest Ever Held by the Ohio Order.

GRATIFYING REPORTS MADE

Over 3,000 Members Added in the Past Year—Financial Condition Good. Nomination And Election of Officers.

The state convention of the Daughters of America now in session here is the largest in point of attendance ever held by the order.

The session Tuesday afternoon was a busy one, and a great deal of important business was disposed of. One of the first matters taken up was the adoption of a resolution expressing sympathy for Mrs. McKinley. The resolution was unaimously adopted.

The reports of state council officers consumed considerable time, but were finally adopted. The documents were of more than the usual importance, and were most gratifying to the membership, since they showed a phenomenal increase in the membership during the past year. More than 3,000 members have been taken into the order in that time; nine new councils have been instituted and two reorganized.

State Councillor Mrs. Lelia B. Kennedy is being congratulated on every hand for the wonderful success she has had during her administration.

The report of Miss Julia Tipton, state council secretary, which was submitted at yesterday's meeting, is as follows:

Report for the year ending Sept. 1, 1901: Total receipts for the year, $2,307.86; balance in treasury, $732.89; total receipts, $3,040.75; total expenditures, $2,342; balance, $698.75; membership September, 1900, 5,786; membership September, 1901, 6,864; initiations, 2,069; by card, 27; reinstated, 25; total, 2,111; loss in membership by suspension, 709; by death, 30; by expulsion, 3; by withdrawal, 163; by defunct councils, 128; total, 1,033; number of councils in good standing, 74; charters granted, 9; reinstated, 2; total, 85; defunct councils, 8; consolidated, 1; total, 76.

Financial statement: Received by subordinate councils, $25,702.50; paid for relief, $7,400.55; invested and in subordinate councils, $5,630.62; value of council property, $9,326.75.

Nominations were made for the various elective offices at the afternoon meeting and the election was held today.

The morning session of the Daughters of America consisted of routine work, and there was little done which would interest the public.

A large number of reports were submitted and acted upon, and it is said some important changes will be made in the constitution.

The election of officers was held at 3 o'clock and the convention will probably end tonight, although it is the intention to confer the auxiliary degree upon a large number of candidates tonight.

When the Daughters convened at 3 this afternoon the election of state

UNION MINERS AID THE STRIKERS

Ask Members to Continue Support For Their Idle Brethren Hereabout.

OTHERS MAY COME OUT

Prospect of Trouble at the DeArmit Mines—State Charities Conference. An Ohio Man to Head the Engineers' National Association.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, Sept. 11.—A statement has been issued by the executive committee of the United Mine Workers of Ohio concerning the strike situation in Columbiana county and the trouble at the DeArmit mines in Belmont county. The members of the organization are asked to continue their support of the strikers and render all the aid possible to suppress the difficulties now facing the union.

The Columbiana county strike embraces mines at and near the following places: East Palestine, New Waterford, Negley, Rogers, Elkton and Cannelton, Beaver county, Pa. There is also a strike in the New Cumberland district. The miners in the districts unaffected are contributing 2 per cent of their wages, which is applied a fund which is distributed among the strikers.

There is much in the published statement to indicate that the men in the DeArmit mines will be called out. The company has presented an "iron-clad" to the men which provides for a sweeping reduction in wages and the forfeiture of all moneys due the employes in case they strike or leave the company without permission. The signatures of Robert Legg, of Stark county, and James McKee, of Columbiana county, both members of the miners' executive committee, are attached to the statement.

The program of the infirmary section of the state conference of charities and correction, which meets at Lima October 8, 9 and 10, was issued Tuesday afternoon. Delegates from Columbiana, Clark, Holmes, Portage and Butler counties will discuss the subject of "How Shall We Punish Inmates of Infirmaries Guilty of Stealing, Destruction of Clothing or Property and for Insubordination?" On the topic of "The Work of Infirmary Physicians," the discussion will be opened by delegates from Stark, Champaign, Portage and Wyandotte counties. Mahoning, Summit, Erie and Lucas counties will open discussions on care and protection of children.

Deputy Examiner Elmer E. Miller, of Canton, who was a delegate to the national convention of stationary engineers at Rochester, N. Y., in a letter to Chief Collier, of the examining board at Columbus, states that Robert Ingleson, of Cleveland, deputy organizer for the N. A. S. E. in this state, was elected vice president of the national body. The custom is for the vice president to succeed the president, so in all probability an Ohio man will be at the head of the national organization next year. Daniel Delaney, of Cincinnati, was re-elected national treasurer.

Mr. Miller says the Ohio delegates had a struggle to land the vice presidency for Mr. Ingleson. Ohio made a splendid showing at the convention. Messrs. Ingleson and Delaney have instituted many branch lodges of the National Association of Stationary Engineers in eastern Ohio. Both gentlemen are well known to the members of the association of East Liverpool.

HALL-HERBERT

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE QUIETLY MARRIED.

Ceremony Took Place at the Bride's Home at Noon Today.

At high noon today at the residence of Mr and Mrs. James B. Hall, at 112 Kossuth street, Miss Elizabeth J. Hall and Mr. Josiah T. Herbert took the vows which made them husband and wife, the Rev. C. G. Jordan officiating.

The wedding was witnessed by only immediate relatives and friends and quietly conducted. Only about 40 guests were present. The parlor was handsomely decorated with flowers and vines of different variety and other ornamentations added to the tasty and attractive display.

Promptly on the stroke of 12 the bride and groom entered the room as the inspiring strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Mayme Simms. Miss Wallace Hall, a cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. S. T. Herbert, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride's costume was of white Persian lawn and daintily trimmed. The groom wore the conventional black. The ceremony was soon completed and the usual congratulations bestowed, after which a sumptuous dinner was serced.

The happy couple left on the afternoon train for Cleveland and will leave that city tonight for Buffalo, where they will visit the exposition and also see the sights about Niagara Falls. On their return trip they will spend a few days at Mackinac island.

The bride is the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Hall. The past few years she was a teacher in the public schools of this city. Aside from a splendid education Mrs. Herbert possesses other attainments of high merit. She is not only a handsome young lady, but has for several years been a leader in social circles. Her friends are innumerable and she is highly esteemed by all.

The groom is the youngest son of Mrs. R. L. Herbert and one of the best known and most popular young men in East Liverpool. For a number of years he held the position of city editor on the News Review, but the past few months has been in the real estate business with his brother, S. T Herbert. He possesses excellent business qualifications and bears an enviable reputation for honesty and integrity.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Herbert are entering into married life with great possibilities before them, and the News Review force—each member being a personal friend of "Joe"—joins the many other admiring friends of the happy couple in wishing them every happiness and abundant prosperity.

On their return they will go to housekeeping in this city.

ASKS $10,000 DAMAGES

MARTHA J. M'KINNON FILES SUIT AT LISBON.

East Liverpool Railway Company the Defendant—Case the Result of an Accident.

Lisbon, Sept. 11.—Martha J. McKinnon, of East Liverpool, has filed a suit against the East Liverpool Railway company, asking for $10,000 damages for personal injuries said to have been sustained by her while a passenger in a street car.

She was hurt in the Calcutta road accident and had a finger broken and was badly bruised. Negligence is charged.

$800 IN BENEFITS

To Be Distributed to Lisbon Strikers During the Present Week.

Lisbon, Sept. 11.—(Special)—Local officers of the Amalgamated Association say about $800 will be received here this week to pay the first strike benefits. There are 175 members of the Lisbon lodge, but many of them are working and entitled to benefits.

SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL HARMONIOUSLY CONDUCTED

Jocosity Indulged in and For Once There Was No Wrangling.

MUCH BUSINESS TRANSACTED

Ordinances and Resolutions Were Passed and Others Introduced.

SEVERAL COMPLAINTS FILED

Damage Claims Entered By Rural Lane Residents—Pay Ordinance Passed With Bills Added to Those Allowed By Claims Committee.

Hilarity was conspicuously predominate at last night's session of council. For once in a long time the solons got through their duties with little agitation, and only on one or two occasions did the meeting branch out into disquisitive channels. Mr. Marshall was absent, as was Mr. Cripps, but the other members seemed to be feeling more amiable than usual and jocosity claimed a goodly share of the evening.

President Nice was the first to move the solons to smiles by a reply he made to one of them who asked where the money was to come from for the payment of a certain bill which was then up for the consideration of the body. "Just draw on the sinking fund," remarked the president, "we're sunk anyhow." Different bills were discussed, but the only way the president could suggest their payment was to fall back on the sinking fund, which long since sank out of sight.

At the beginning of the session and after the reading of the minutes by the clerk, ordinances to establish grade lines on Fox alley and Hazel street were placed on third reading and passed.

The resolution providing for the appropriation of a portion of Robinson street in the East End for public use was placed on second reading. The Pleasant street sidewalk ordinance was placed on final reading and passed.

A petition was read from property owners on Springdale street asking that a portion of the thoroughfare, one block in length, east of Jennings street, be graded. The petitioners agreed to pay the cost of the work and have already arranged with John Lutton to do the same. The petition asked that the contract be awarded to him. The petitioners having waived all rights to exact any concessions from the city, the petition was favorable acted on.

A petition from Edgewood property holders asking for a light on Hazel street was also read. It was referred to the light committee.

In compliance with instructions from council, the street committee having made the necessary inspection, recommended that Russet street be graded and the dirt therefrom be used to make the fills on McKinnon avenue, not yet completed. On motion of Bullock, council will act in accordance with the committees' recommendation.

Mayor Davidson's report for the month ending September 15 was read and accepted. It showed that $131 had been collected for fines and licenses. The report of the fire department was also read as follows: Fire calls, 6; patrol calls, 46; ambulance calls, 4; prisoners conveyed to jail, 49. The report was accepted.

The resolution providing for the construction of sidewalks on Trentvale street was placed on final reading and passed. It decrees that the mayor shall instruct the property holders to do the work, the city not being held for any of the expense.

The resolution for the improvement of Grant street was also placed on third reading and passed. Mr. Barlow stated that with one or two exceptions the property owners were willing to do the work at their own expense and suggested that it be left to them. However, after further consideration he concluded that it would be better to have council see that the work was done.

The pay ordinance next occupied the solons' attention. The list of the bills allowed by the claims committee was read and the obligation in the shape of a judgment secured against the city by Jesse J. Chamberlain was then considered and finally placed on

The custom is for the vice president to succeed the president, so in all probability an Ohio man will be at the head of the national organization next year. Daniel Delaney, of Cincinnati, was re-elected national treasurer.

Mr. Miller says the Ohio delegates had a struggle to land the vice presidency for Mr. Ingleson. Ohio made a splendid showing at the convention. Messrs. Ingleson and Delaney have instituted many branch lodges of the National Association of Stationary Engineers in eastern Ohio. Both gentlemen are well known to the members of the association of East Liverpool.

HALL-HERBERT

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE QUIETLY MARRIED.

Ceremony Took Place at the Bride's Home at Noon Today.

At high noon today at the residence of Mr and Mrs. James B. Hall, at 112 Kossuth street, Miss Elizabeth J. Hall and Mr. Josiah T. Herbert took the vows which made them husband and wife, the Rev. C. G. Jordan officiating.

The wedding was witnessed by only immediate relatives and friends and quietly conducted. Only about 40 guests were present. The parlor was handsomely decorated with flowers and vines of different variety and other ornamentations added to the tasty and attractive display.

Promptly on the stroke of 12 the bride and groom entered the room as the inspiring strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Mayme Simms. Miss Wallace Hall, a cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. S. T. Herbert, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride's costume was of white Persian lawn and daintily trimmed. The groom wore the conventional black. The ceremony was soon completed and the usual congratulations bestowed, after which a sumptuous dinner was serced.

The happy couple left on the afternoon train for Cleveland and will leave that city tonight for Buffalo, where they will visit the exposition and also see the sights about Niagara Falls. On their return trip they will spend a few days at Mackinac island.

The bride is the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Hall. The past few years she was a teacher in the public schools of this city. Aside from a splendid education Mrs. Herbert possesses other attainments of high merit. She is not only a handsome young lady, but has for several years been a leader in social circles. Her friends are innumerable and she is highly esteemed by all.

The groom is the youngest son of Mrs. R. L. Herbert and one of the best known and most popular young men in East Liverpool. For a number of years he held the position of city editor on the News Review, but the past few months has been in the real estate business with his brother, S. T Herbert. He possesses excellent business qualifications and bears an enviable reputation for honesty and integrity.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Herbert are entering into married life with great possibilities before them, and the News Review force—each member being a personal friend of "Joe"—joins the many other admiring friends of the happy couple in wishing them every happiness and abundant prosperity.

On their return they will go to housekeeping in this city.

ASKS $10,000 DAMAGES

MARTHA J. M'KINNON FILES SUIT AT LISBON.

East Liverpool Railway Company the Defendant—Case the Result of an Accident.

Lisbon, Sept. 11.—Martha J. McKinnon, of East Liverpool, has filed a suit against the East Liverpool Railway company, asking for $10,000 damages for personal injuries said to have been sustained by her while a passenger in a street car.

She was hurt in the Calcutta road accident and had a finger broken and was badly bruised. Negligence is charged.

$800 IN BENEFITS

To Be Distributed to Lisbon Strikers During the Present Week.

Lisbon, Sept. 11.—(Special)—Local officers of the Amalgamated Association say about $800 will be received here this week to pay the first strike benefits. There are 175 members of the Lisbon lodge, but many of them are working and entitled to benefits.

SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL HARMONIOUSLY CONDUCTED

Jocosity Indulged in and For Once There Was No Wrangling.

MUCH BUSINESS TRANSACTED

Ordinances and Resolutions Were Passed and Others Introduced.

SEVERAL COMPLAINTS FILED

Damage Claims Entered By Rural Lane Residents—Pay Ordinance Passed With Bills Added to Those Allowed By Claims Committee.

Hilarity was conspicuously predominate at last night's session of council. For once in a long time the solons got through their duties with little agitation, and only on one or two occasions did the meeting branch out into disquisitive channels. Mr. Marshall was absent, as was Mr. Cripps, but the other members seemed to be feeling more amiable than usual and jocosity claimed a goodly share of the evening.

President Nice was the first to move the solons to smiles by a reply he made to one of them who asked where the money was to come from for the payment of a certain bill which was then up for the consideration of the body. "Just draw on the sinking fund," remarked the president, "we're sunk anyhow." Different bills were discussed, but the only way the president could suggest their payment was to fall back on the sinking fund, which long since sank out of sight.

At the beginning of the session and after the reading of the minutes by the clerk, ordinances to establish grade lines on Fox alley and Hazel street were placed on third reading and passed.

The resolution providing for the appropriation of a portion of Robinson street in the East End for public use was placed on second reading. The Pleasant street sidewalk ordinance was placed on final reading and passed.

A petition was read from property owners on Springdale street asking that a portion of the thoroughfare, one block in length, east of Jennings street, be graded. The petitioners agreed to pay the cost of the work and have already arranged with John Lutton to do the same. The petition asked that the contract be awarded to him. The petitioners having waived all rights to exact any concessions from the city, the petition was favorable acted on.

A petition from Edgewood property holders asking for a light on Hazel street was also read. It was referred to the light committee.

In compliance with instructions from council, the street committee having made the necessary inspection, recommended that Russet street be graded and the dirt therefrom be used to make the fills on McKinnon avenue, not yet completed. On motion of Bullock, council will act in accordance with the committees' recommendation.

Mayor Davidson's report for the month ending September 15 was read and accepted. It showed that $131 had been collected for fines and licenses. The report of the fire department was also read as follows: Fire calls, 6; patrol calls, 46; ambulance calls, 4; prisoners conveyed to jail, 49. The report was accepted.

The resolution providing for the construction of sidewalks on Trentvale street was placed on final reading and passed. It decrees that the mayor shall instruct the property holders to do the work, the city not being held for any of the expense.

The resolution for the improvement of Grant street was also placed on third reading and passed. Mr. Barlow stated that with one or two exceptions the property owners were willing to do the work at their own expense and suggested that it be left to them. However, after further consideration he concluded that it would be better to have council see that the work was done.

The pay ordinance next occupied the solons' attention. The list of the bills allowed by the claims committee was read and the obligation in the shape of a judgment secured against the city by Jesse J. Chamberlain was then considered and finally placed on

A VERY CLOSE CALL

CALVIN SMITH UNCONSCIOUS FOR SEVERAL HOURS.

Severely Injured in Trying to Alight From a Moving Car.

Calvin Smith was thrown from a street car on Mulberry street last night and very badly injured.

Smith, who resides at Ralston crossing, had been to town and claims that he rang the bell for the motorman to stop at the crossing, but that he failed to do so. He rang it again at the switch at Pennsylvania avenue and Mulberry street and the car slacking speed he went to step off, when the power was turned on and he was thrown violently to the ground.

In falling he struck his head on a stone which cut a large hole in the back of his head. When a number of bystanders rushed to his assistance they discovered he was unconscious, and carrying him to a porch nearby, summoned Dr. Mowen, but he was unable to revive the man, who remained unconscious until 3 o'clock this morning.

It is claimed by the motorman, conductor and several passengers that Smith attempted to get off without having the bell rung.

FOOT BALL TEAM

An East End Aggregation, Which Is Willing to Meet Other Teams.

The Marine foot ball team have organized for the season and they will line-up as follows:

Four More Hot Summers Coming

By GARRETT P. SERVISS Astronomer

ALL astronomers know that the face of the sun is blanketed with absorbing vapors, while its interior is much hotter than the glowing shell that we see. Strip off the vaporous blanket entirely, and the surface of the earth would probably burst into smoke and flame in the instantaneous gush of unbearable heat that would be poured upon it.

Whenever, as occurs periodically, though not always to the same extent, the solar vapors are thinned, the heat from within leaps out through the weakened shell and strikes the earth and the other nearby planets as with a breath of fire from the suddenly opened door of a blazing furnace.

That is what happened this summer, and the immediate agency that flung open the furnace door and sent forth the destroying blast is the mysterious power whose visible manifestation is the presence of black sun spots. But it is a mistake to suppose that the sun spots themselves exercise any direct influence upon the weather or that there must be spots on the sun whenever there is extraordinary heat on the earth.

THE SPOTS ARE SIMPLY INDICATORS OF THE SUN'S CONDITION, RESEMBLING IN THAT RESPECT THE ERUPTIONS ON THE FACE OF A SMALLPOX PATIENT. THEY TELL THE STORY OF THE SUN'S INTERNAL CONVULSIONS AND INDICATE SOME OF THE PLACES ON ITS SURFACE WHERE THE PENT UP FORCES ARE BURSTING OUT.

The sun is subject to strange physical disorder, which shakes its system to the very center and, like a malarious disease, recurs in more or less regular periods, but with varying intensity. In fact, the similarity to some of the recurrent diseases that afflict humanity goes so far that there is a kind of double period in the sun spot cycle, and we have now arrived at the beginning of the great primary period of the cycle which is marked by intensification of the solar disturbances.

Hence the fierce blasts of the destroying sunshine that dried and parched the air, dissipated its gathering moisture, scattered the assembling stormclouds and out of a cloudless sky dropped scorching atmospheric sheets upon the cornfields of the west until the very soil seemed on the point of catching fire.

FOR THE NEXT FOUR YEARS THESE GIGANTIC OUTBURSTS WILL INCREASE IN FURY, AND A CORRESPONDING SERIES OF TERRESTRIAL SEASONS, MARKED BY GREAT EXCESSES OF TEMPERATURE, SUDDEN CONTRASTS AND EXTRAORDINARY CYCLONIC DISTURBANCES, WILL FOLLOW.

UNDER A TANK

RILEY DUFF HAD A CLOSE CALL AT SALINEVILLE.

A Big Oil Tank Came Down And Gave Him a Terrible Squeeze.

Saline ville, Sept. 11.—(Special)—Riley Huff, of this town, a brother of Frank Huff, of Wellsville, had a narrow escape from instant death yesterday morning. He was badly injured, but it is believed he will recover.

Duff was assisting a force of men in setting up a large oil tank, weighing several tons. He was underneath it and engaged in fitting one of the timbers forming the support for the receptacle. It had been raised by means of jack screws and while Duff was almost directly underneath the center, the huge tank slid off and dropped completely down.

Lying close beside him was a piece of timber about eight inches in thickness, and this saved the man's life. The timber was forced into the earth to a depth of about three inches and Duff's body was squeezed into a space not more than five. No bones were broken. Internal injuries were sustained, and as yet the doctors are not prepared to say what the outcome will be.

Cleaning Oil Paintings.

An art journal suggests raw potatoes to clean oil paintings. Have a few potatoes at hand, each cut in halves. The fresh surface is dampened slightly with cold water and used to rub the canvas. As the potatoes show soil the surface is sliced off and the rubbing continued. This process will create a little lather, which should be wiped off as fast as it accumulates with a clean, damp sponge. When the whole canvas is cleaned, it should be washed over lightly with clean water from which the chill has been taken and finally the water carefully wiped off with an old clean silk handkerchief. Raw potatoes to clean paintings are frequently in hearsay evidence, but this description of the process may be of value. It is suggested by way of reasonable caution that the experiment should be tried first upon a canvas of trifling value and upon one corner of that.

The Collection.

While lecturing his congregation rather strongly on a recent Sunday about slack attendance and small collections a minister of a church in an English city used the following eloquent and forcible sentence: "Yes, brethren, our collection of a little over £3 last Sunday included no fewer than 500 halfpennies. We all know about the widow's mite, and I am sure we are very glad to receive it; but I don't think there are 500 widows in this congregation!"

Comparisons are inevitable between the two versions of "Don Cæsar de Bazan" now running in this city. One, at the Criterion theater, with William Faversham as the star, is called "A Royal Rival." It was written by Gerald Du Maurier, and was played in England by Lewis Waller, the actor who a few years ago started the "Musketeers" craze and must now be charged with responsibility for the "Don Cæsar" revival. The other version, with James K. Hackett as the star and Victor Mapes as the author, is holding forth at Wallack's theater.

Broadly speaking, "A Royal Rival" is a better play than "Don Cæsar's Return," although there are minor respects in which the Mapes version is superior. As to the supporting companies, Mr. Hackett's is much stronger, at least on paper, although in reality many of his best people are wasted in roles which are either unsuited to them or unworthy their best efforts.

As to the stars, Mr. Hackett manages to make his Don Cæsar a fellow who betrays at every turn that he is a gentleman born, while Mr. Faversham's Don Cæsar gives the impression of having sprung from Bowery stock. Still, with all his mannerisms, Faversham is a better Don Cæsar than Hackett in that the bluster and the swagger inseparable from the role are clearly shown by him, while Hackett does little more than suggest them. Then, too, Hackett's exasperating trick of directly addressing the audience, instead of the stage personage to whom he is supposed to be speaking, every time he has a particularly bright speech to utter so dissillusions the onlooker as to almost make him lose interest in the adventures of the picturesque, if impossible, roisterer.

Mr. Faversham made a great mistake in coming forward in the role of Don Cæsar, and Mr. Hackett has made a greater one in following suit. In justice to the latter, however, it should be mentioned that he is generally understood to have decided upon the production of a Don Cæsar play long before Mr. Faversham's manager, Charles Frohman, had hit upon a similar vehicle for the exploitation of Mr. Faversham as a star.

The cast of "Don Cæsar's Return" was as follows:

Carlos I., king of Spain	Wilton Lackaye
Don Jose, prime minister	Theodore Roberts
Don Cæsar de Bazan	James K. Hackett
Sangrado, queen's physician	Thomas A. Hall
Benuto, a courtier	George Le Soir
Lazarillo, an armorer's apprentice	Fernandu Eliscu
Marquis of Gonzalo	W. J. LeMoyne
Pedro, a valet	Egbert Case
Captain of the guard	Herbert Carr
Diego, a prison keeper	Edward Donnelly
A boatman	Ira A. Hards
A judge	Theodore Hamilton
Second judge	John E. Mackin
Court officer	Hale Hamilton
Captain of the Alcazars	Sidney Price
A herald	William Lamp
Queen of Spain	Maude Roosevelt
Marquise de Gonzalo	Virginia Buchanan
Maritana	Florence Kahn
Antonia	Charlotte Walker

When Eleanora Duse first visited this country, the fact that she would not submit to an interview of any sort served the purpose of causing her to be more talked of than if she had had columns upon columns in every issue of every sensational newspaper in the country. If her attitude had been studied, it could not have resulted more successfully from the standpoint of the press agent, but there is no doubt that Duse was sincere in her statement that she despises newspaper notoriety, caring only for that publicity which she receives through honest theatrical criticism. It was therefore a good deal of a shock to her many admirers in the United States when recently a long, inane, but manifestly ungenuine interview with the great Italian actress was published. In this Duse was made to say things which it would have been perfectly natural for "Tottie Coughdrops" to say, but which were as much out of keeping with the nature and views of this peculiar woman as anything could possibly be. The interview was printed in almost every section of the country, and there is no question that it worked great injury to the reputation of Mme. Duse. Her prospective managers, Messrs. Liebler & Co. of New York, cabled the substance of this alleged interview to her, with a request for an immediate reply. It was forthcoming, and the language was by no means vague. The interview purported to have been secured in Paris and carried all the earmarks of genuineness, even to the copyright line. The unfortunte part of it, however, is that Duse in her cable to Messrs. Liebler & Co declares that she has not been in Paris for three years and that the interview is false from beginning to end. No greater artist than Duse has been seen in the United States for many years, and it is as an act of simple justice that this statement of the facts in the case is made.

Andrew Mack is now a Broadway attraction. He entered the lists of high grade attractions at the Herald Square theater in Theodore Burt Sayre's Irish comedy, "Tom Moore." It is strange that no one ever thought before of Tom Moore in connection with Andrew Mack. However, it was finally thought of, and, what is perhaps more to the point, the piece has made a success, and the exponent of the title role has by means of it gone up several pegs in the estimation of the theater goers of New York city. Mack was easy, graceful and altogether excellent despite the fact that there is room for much improvement in the rather pathetic scenes. His supporting company is good enough for the purpose for which it is intended, the distribution of characters being as follows:

Tom Moore, Ireland's favorite poet	Andrew Mack
Prince of Wales, regent of England	Myron Calice
Sir Percival Lovelace, boon companion to the prince	George F. Nash
Lord Moira, Moore's friend and patron	Theodore Babcock
Robin Dyke, an Irish miner poet	George W. Deyo
Sheridan, the famous wit	Giles Shine
Beau Brummel, a leader of society	Harry P. Stone
Terence Farrell, a young Irishman	Frank Mayne
Buster, Moore's servant	Edward J. Heron
McDermott, a publisher	Richard J. Dillon
Servant	John Napier
Mickey, Willie, Patsey, Dicky, Johnny, Tommy, Lizzie, Nellie, Maggie, Katie, Bridget, Mary (school children)	Johnny Cooke, Willie Cooke, Augustus Wilkes, Georgie Cadieux, Johnny Wilkes, Harold Grau, Vivian Martin, Ethel Clifton, Mary McManus, Sylvia Cashin, Isabel Barrcacole, Loretta Ruge
Bessie Dyke	Josephine Lovett
Winnie Farrell, an heiress	Susie Wilkerson
Lady Fitz-Herbert, the prince's favorite	Jane Peyton
Mrs. Malone, Moore's landlady	Maggie Fielding

The Rogers brothers have also gone up a peg. They are now at the Knickerbocker theater presenting a two act puzzle entitled "The Rogers Brothers In Washington," the carpenter of which is that prolific builder of absurdities of this type, John J. McNally. No one would care to assert that Mr. McNally's plays are striking examples of the best in stage literature, but it is a fact that I cannot remember one of them that has failed to make money.

The Rogers brothers in their new piece are about the same as they have been for, lo, these many years, and that is quite well, thank you. The play is elaborately mounted, the principals have a liberal supply of topsy turvy jokes and bottom-side-up talk, the chorus is pretty and large (in numbers) and the songs are catchy. That these points are all that is necessary to make the success of a Rogers brothers entertainment is evidenced by the fact that the Knickerbocker theater, notwithstanding the very torrid weather, has been doing enormous business ever since they have been its tenants.

Thomas W. Broadhurst, it is announced, has secured Clara Morris' signature to a contract calling for a certain number of appearances on the lecture platform in the United States. As a general proposition lecturers are played out in this country; but, unless every one connected with the theatrical profession is mistaken, Clara Morris will demonstrate that a good attraction will draw audiences to any sort of entertainment. Clara Morris possesses an almost limitless fund of reminiscences, and as she has demonstrated in her recent magazine articles that she knows how to turn these into interesting reading matter, it is not at all likely that she will fail to afford her prospective auditors great entertainment. Clara Morris was for years the greatest native actress in her line. Who knows but that she may also become the greatest lecturer?

Cleaning Oil Paintings.

An art journal suggests raw potatoes to clean oil paintings. Have a few potatoes at hand, each cut in halves. The fresh surface is dampened slightly with cold water and used to rub the canvas. As the potatoes show soil the surface is sliced off and the rubbing continued. This process will create a little lather, which should be wiped off as fast as it accumulates with a clean, damp sponge. When the whole canvas is cleaned, it should be washed over lightly with clean water from which the chill has been taken and finally the water carefully wiped off with an old clean silk handkerchief. Raw potatoes to clean paintings are frequently in hearsay evidence, but this description of the process may be of value. It is suggested by way of reasonable caution that the experiment should be tried first upon a canvas of trifling value and upon one corner of that.

The Collection.

While lecturing his congregation rather strongly on a recent Sunday about slack attendance and small collections a minister of a church in an English city used the following eloquent and forcible sentence: "Yes, brethren, our collection of a little over £3 last Sunday included no fewer than 500 halfpennies. We all know about the widow's mite, and I am sure we are very glad to receive it; but I don't think there are 500 widows in this congregation!"

Comparisons are inevitable between the two versions of "Don Cæsar de Bazan" now running in this city. One, at the Criterion theater, with William Faversham as the star, is called "A Royal Rival." It was written by Gerald Du Maurier, and was played in England by Lewis Waller, the actor who a few years ago started the "Musketeers" craze and must now be charged with responsibility for the "Don Cæsar" revival. The other version, with James K. Hackett as the star and Victor Mapes as the author, is holding forth at Wallack's theater.

Broadly speaking, "A Royal Rival" is a better play than "Don Cæsar's Return," although there are minor respects in which the Mapes version is superior. As to the supporting companies, Mr. Hackett's is much stronger, at least on paper, although in reality many of his best people are wasted in roles which are either unsuited to them or unworthy their best efforts.

As to the stars, Mr. Hackett manages to make his Don Cæsar a fellow who betrays at every turn that he is a gentleman born, while Mr. Faversham's Don Cæsar gives the impression of having sprung from Bowery stock. Still, with all his mannerisms, Faversham is a better Don Cæsar than Hackett in that the bluster and the swagger inseparable from the role are clearly shown by him, while Hackett does little more than suggest them. Then, too, Hackett's exasperating trick of directly addressing the audience, instead of the stage personage to whom he is supposed to be speaking, every time he has a particularly bright speech to utter so disillusions the onlooker as to almost make him lose interest in the adventures of the picturesque, if impossible, roisterer.

Mr. Faversham made a great mistake in coming forward in the role of Don Cæsar, and Mr. Hackett has made a greater one in following suit. In justice to the latter, however, it should be mentioned that he is generally understood to have decided upon the production of a Don Cæsar play long before Mr. Faversham's manager, Charles Frohman, had hit upon a similar vehicle for the exploitation of Mr. Faversham as a star.

The cast of "Don Cæsar's Return" was as follows:

Carlos I., king of Spain	Wilton Lackaye
Don Jose, prime minister	Theodore Roberts
Don Cæsar de Bazan	James K. Hackett
Sangrado, queen's physician	Thomas A. Hall
Benuto, a courtier	George Le Soir
Lazarillo, an armorer's apprentice	Fernandu Eliscu

Second judge	John E. Mackin
Court officer	Hale Hamilton
Captain of the Alcazars	Sidney Price
A herald	William Lamp
Queen of Spain	Maude Roosevelt
Marquise de Gonzalo	Virginia Buchanan
Maritana	Florence Kahn
Antonia	Charlotte Walker

When Eleanora Duse first visited this country, the fact that she would not submit to an interview of any sort served the purpose of causing her to be more talked of than if she had had columns upon columns in every issue of every sensational newspaper in the country. If her attitude had been studied, it could not have resulted more successfully from the standpoint of the press agent, but there is no doubt that Duse was sincere in her statement that she despises newspaper notoriety, caring only for that publicity which she receives through honest theatrical criticism. It was therefore a good deal of a shock to her many admirers in the United States when recently a long, inane, but manifestly ungenuine interview with the great Italian actress was published. In this Duse was made to say things which it would have been perfectly natural for "Tottie Coughdrops" to say, but which were as much out of keeping with the nature and views of this peculiar woman as anything could possibly be. The interview was printed in almost every section of the country, and there is no question that it worked great injury to the reputation of Mme. Duse. Her prospective managers, Messrs. Liebler & Co. of New York, cabled the substance of this alleged interview to her, with a request for an immediate reply. It was forthcoming, and the language was by no means vague. The interview purported to have been secured in Paris and carried all the earmarks of genuineness, even to the copyright line. The unfortunte part of it, however, is that Duse in her cable to Messrs. Liebler & Co declares that she has not been in Paris for three years and that the interview is false from beginning to end. No greater artist than Duse has been seen in the United States for many years, and it is as an act of simple justice that this statement of the facts in the case is made.

Andrew Mack is now a Broadway attraction. He entered the lists of high grade attractions at the Herald Square theater in Theodore Burt Sayre's Irish comedy, "Tom Moore." It is strange that no one ever thought before of Tom Moore in connection with Andrew Mack. However, it was finally thought of, and, what is perhaps more to the point, the piece has made a success, and the exponent of the title role has by means of it gone up several pegs in the estimation of the theater goers of New York city. Mack was easy, graceful and altogether excellent despite the fact that there is room for much improvement in the rather pathetic scenes. His supporting company is good enough for the purpose for which it is intended, the distribution of characters being as follows:

Tom Moore, Ireland's favorite poet	Andrew Mack
Prince of Wales, regent of England	Myron Calice
Sir Percival Lovelace, boon companion to the prince	George F. Nash
Lord Moira, Moore's friend and patron	Theodore Babcock
Robin Dyke, an Irish minor poet	George W. Deyo
Sheridan, the famous wit	Giles Shine
Beau Brummel, a leader of society	Harry P. Stone
Terence Farrell, a young Irishman	Frank Mayne
Buster, Moore's servant	Edward J. Heron
McDermott, a publisher	Richard J. Dillon
Servant	John Napier
Mickey, Willie, Patsey, Dicky, Johnny, Tommy, Lizzie, Nellie, Maggie, Katie, Bridget, Mary (school children)	Johnny Cooke, Willie Cooke, Augustus Wilkes, Georgie Cadieux, Johnny Wilkes, Harold Grau, Vivian Martin, Ethel Clifton, Mary McManus, Sylvia Cashin, Isabel Barrcacole, Loretta Ruge
Bessie Dyke	Josephine Lovett
Winnie Farrell, an heiress	Susie Wilkerson
Lady Fitz-Herbert, the prince's favorite	Jane Peyton
Mrs. Malone, Moore's landlady	Maggie Fielding

The Rogers brothers have also gone up a peg. They are now at the Knickerbocker theater presenting a two act puzzle entitled "The Rogers Brothers In Washington," the carpenter of which is that prolific builder of absurdities of this type, John J. McNally. No one would care to assert that Mr. McNally's plays are striking examples of the best in stage literature, but it is a fact that I cannot remember one of them that has failed to make money.

The Rogers brothers in their new piece are about the same as they have been for, lo, these many years, and that is quite well, thank you. The play is elaborately mounted, the principals have a liberal supply of topsy turvy jokes and bottom-side-up talk, the chorus is pretty and large (in numbers) and the songs are catchy. That these points are all that is necessary to make the success of a Rogers brothers entertainment is evidenced by the fact that the Knickerbocker theater, notwithstanding the very torrid weather, has been doing enormous business ever since they have been its tenants.

Thomas W. Broadhurst, it is announced, has secured Clara Morris' signature to a contract calling for a certain number of appearances on the lecture platform in the United States. As a general proposition lecturers are played out in this country; but, unless every one connected with the theatrical profession is mistaken, Clara Morris will demonstrate that a good attraction will draw audiences to any sort of entertainment. Clara Morris possesses an almost limitless fund of reminiscences, and as she has demonstrated in her recent magazine articles that she knows how to turn these into interesting reading matter, it is not at all likely that she will fail to afford her prospective auditors great entertainment. Clara Morris was for years the greatest native actress in her line. Who knows but that she may also become the greatest lecturer?

EMMA GOLDMAN ABUSES PRESIDENT

Says Mean Things--Don't See Why More Fuss Should Be Made Over Him Than Any Other Man.

SCARCELY KNEW CZOLGOSZ, SO SHE ASSERTED.

Had Brief Conversation With Him in Chicago—When Arrested She Denied Her Identity, but later Asserted She Had Intende to Surrender.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Emma Goldman, whose speeches are alleged to have filled the brain of Leon Czolgosz, the would-be assassin of President McKinley, was arrested here.

Miss Goldman's manner was defiant as she was led into the office of Chief of Police O'Neill, but she disclaimed all knowledge of Czolgosz and his crime, admitting only that she met him here July 12.

"Do you know that your words are what Czolgosz claims stirred him to shoot the president?" she was asked.

"I do not. I never advocated violence. I scarcely knew the man. I was leaving for Rochester via Buffalo when Czolgosz had a few words with me. He said he had heard me lecture at some memorial hall in Cleveland last May and that he wanted to know me. He said he knew I was in Chicago and looked me up. I scarcely remember anything about him save that his complexion was light."

"Then how do you know that this man is the one who tried to kill the president?"

"Oh," with a shrug of the shoulders, "I guessed that from what the newspapers say."

"What did you think when you heard that an attempt to kill the president had been made?" the woman was asked.

With a wave of her hands, and another shrug of her shoulders, she answered disdainfully: "I thought, Oh, the fool."

The prisoner's manner had been growing more and more excited, although she made an evident effort to control herself. In this she finally succeeded and launched into a discourse of the teachings of anarchy.

She declared that anarchy did not teach men to do the act which made Czolgosz despised and hated the world over.

'We work against the system and education is our watchword," she said.

"It was early last July when I came to Chicago to visit the Izaaks family," she continued, in answer to interrogations concerning her whereabouts recently.

Saw Czolgcsz in July.

"On the night of July 12 Izaaks was out of the house. The bell rang and I went to the door. The man who I learn through the newspapers was Czolgosz stood there. He said he wanted to see me. I was about to catch the Nickel Plate train, as I and Mr. Izaak's daughter were about to go to Rochester. He went to the Rock Island depot with us, but I was so busy taking leave of my friends that I scarcely noticed him. It was not a time when one would want to make new friends. At the depot i had the few words with him of which I have told. That was all there ever was between us.

"I am an anarchist—a student of socialism, but nothing in anything i ever said to Leon Czolgosz knowingly would have led him to do the act which startled everybody Friday."

"Not even in your lectures? He says your lectures set his brain on fire," asked the interviewer.

"Am I accountable because some crack-brained person put a wrong construction on my words? Leon Czolgosz, I am convinced, planned the deed unaided and entirely alone. There is no anarchist ring which would help him. There may be anarchists who would murder, but there also are men in every walk of life who sometimes feel the impulse to kill. I do not know, surely, but I think Czolgosz was one of those down-trodden men who see all the misery which the rich inflict upon the poor, who think of it, who brood over it, and then, in despair, resolve to strike a great blow, as they think, for the good of their fellow men. But that is not anarchy. Czolgosz (the woman pronounced the name with the greatest ease—Czolgosz may have been inspired by me; but, if he was, he took the wrong way of showing it."

Police Not Entirely Satisfied.

Police officials are not entirely satisfied with Miss Goldman's story. When Captain Schuettler and Detective Hartz discovered her at the home of one Norris, at 303 Sheffield avenue, she at first denied her identity.

"Hello, Miss Goldman," said the captain, as he entered the parlor. "Are you glad to see me?"

"I'm not Miss Goldman; I'm a Swedish woman and my name is Lena Larson," answered the woman, endeavoring to imitate the Swedish dialect.

"All right; I speak Swedish myself," said the police officer, as he poured out a few questions in the Norse tongue.

Miss Goldman didn't answer, affecting to misunderstand.

Detective Hartz meanwhile, had been investigating and had discovered a pen with the name "Emma Goldman" engraved thereupon.

"What does this mean?" shouted Captain Schuettler, holding the tell-tale article before its owner's eyes.

"It means that the game is up," she said. She then admitted her identity and accompanied the police to the office of Chief O'Neill.

In her conversation with reporters—and she talked with them at length twice during Tuesday—the excitement she was laboring under was suppressed, and only once did she break down completely. That was when Captain Schuettler led her from the office of Chief of Police O'Neill to the cab which was waiting to convey her to the woman's annex to the Harrison street police station. For a moment she cried. In a moment, however, this exhibition of distress was over.

She said her purpose in coming here had been to assist the anarchists who were arrested here several days ago. She had intended to give herself up to the police, but had delayed it, until the police she had derided so much had taken the matter into their own hands.

She was held on a warrant sworn out by Captain Colleran, charging her with conspiracy to murder the president. As her co-conspirators were named, the anarchists are already in jail.

"I shall insist upon an immediate hearing," she said, in speaking of the probability of a postponement being asked for by the city prosecutor. "They want me to go to New York without requisition papers, but I will not go; I know the legal ropes and I'll make them fight every step. And I'm not afraid to go at that."

Later Miss Goldman was interviewed in the woman's annex at the police station by an Associated Press reporter. She said in part:

"It is a dirty trick to charge in the newspaper reports that it was the result of an anarchist plot. Mark Hanna has been the ruler of this country; not McKinley. McKinley has been the most insignificant ruler that this country has ever had. He has neither wit nor intelligence, but has been a tool in the hands of Mark Hanna."

"What man in the United States, in your opinion, is of such prominence to warrant a plot?" she was asked.

"I am not in position to say," replied Miss Goldman, "who ought to be killed. The monopolists and the wealthy of this country are responsible for the existence of a Czolgosz. If imperialism would not grow in this country, if the liberties of the people were not trampled under foot, there would have been no violence."

Referring to the would-be assassin, Miss Goldman said:

"I feel that the man is one of those unfortunates who have been driven to despair and misery to commit the deed. I feel very deeply with him as an individual as I would feel with anybody who suffers. If I had the means I would help him as far as I could. I would see that he had counsel and that justice was done him."

Asked if she thought Czolgosz's act was praiseworthy from her point of view, she answered:

"I am not in a position to say whether it was good or bad. It is bad for the man who attempted to do it. I am not in his boots and know nothing about it. What I don't see is why they should make more fuss about the president than anybody else. All men are born equal."

"But some men rise above the equality of birth," a reporter suggested. "We are interested in the man whom we have made our chief."

Insulting Remark About McKinley.

"I don't think that men put him in office; I think that money put him in office," replied Miss Goldman.

In reference to Czolgosz's alleged statement that he was inspired by a lecture of Miss Goldman's in Cleveland, the prisoner said:

"As I have repeatedly said, it is foolish to think that this man would claim that he did that deed alone and unaided, and at the same time claim that I inspired him. If he had an accomplice and still claimed that he was acting alone, do you think he would have singled me out as the only friend he would not protect by assuming entire responsibility? He may have heard me in Cleveland, for I lectured there twice May 6 last."

St. Louis, Sept. 11.—It has been learned that Emma Goldman held eight conferences last Friday and Saturday with St. Louis anarchists in two saloons. The proprietor of one of the places says she departed for Chicago Saturday night, but may have left the train before reaching that city.

When Emma Goldman came into the rendezvous Saturday morning she was shown newspapers, relating the circumstances of the shooting at Buffalo, and asserting that she was accused of being implicated. She laughed and said:

"Let's see them prove what they allege."

"I have a notion to go straight to one of the newspaper offices," she is quoted as saying, "or to the police, and ask them what they want of me. I may go to Buffalo and brave it through there. Why, what can they do? They can prove nothing."

ALFONSO TO TRAVEL.

Spain's Boy King Will Visit Various Parts of Europe.

When in a few days President Loubet of France meets his friend and ally, Nicholas II. of Russia, he will welcome at the same time as a guest young King Alfonso of Spain. Together the president and the two monarchs will review the French army in its grand maneuvers near the ancient city of Rheims.

The young king of Spain's visit to his northern neighbor will be part of his extended trip through Spain and France. He expects to visit Gibraltar, the Balearic islands and Marseilles, ending the trip at Reims. It is quite probable that the tour will be extended to Germany, and Alfonso may pay a visit to his Teutonic "cousin," Emperor William. It is also possible that the return trip may be made through Austria, giving Alfonso an opportunity of meeting his old kinsman, the emperor of that country. Throughout his travels the king will be accompanied by General Weyler of unpleasant memory.

SETTLE THE STRIKE.

Should Shaffer and Without Delay, Sentiment of Resolution Passed By

AN AMALGAMATED COMMITTEE.

Shaffer Denied He Had Been Authorized to Settle—Said Executive Board Could Not Delegate Such Power to Him and Advisory Board

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—It was ascertained last night that the meeting of the executive board of the Amalgamated association Saturday and Monday last finally resulted in the passage, by a unanimous vote, of a resolution expressing the sentiment of the body that President Shaffer should settle the strike, and without delay. After going over the entire situation very thoroughly, hearing reports from all strike centers and learning the temper of the men now idle, the board decided that the terms of President Schwab held out the greatest hope for the Amalgamated association and that they should be accepted as soon as possible in order that no other former union mills would be started and dropped from the list that President Schwab had agreed to sign for.

The statement to this effect was given so clearly and without any reserve that it was carried to President Shaffer. He denied that he had been authorized to settle the strike, and said that it was to go on as usual. He further declared that neither he or the advisory board, which includes the other national officers of the association, had any power to settle the strike and it could not be delegated to them by the executive board.

Peace Rumors Reached New York.

The rumors of peace reached New York during yesterday. Reports from that place came to the Amalgamated association. President Shaffer denied all rumors. When asked if there was any possibility of a settlement he said none that he knew of. Despite the strike the trust's earnings last month are said to have reached the $8,000,000 mark.

Some of the strikers said that they had heard that the executive board had taken some such action as had been reported, but they did not know of it positively. All who could be seen said that they believed firmly that an order for them to return to work would come in a few days and that by Monday of next week at the latest they would be permitted to go into the mills without "scabbing." If there is no settlement soon, it is believed that the executive board will be called again to meet and to take some more radical action to force the hesitating members of the advisory board to do something.

Other Mills Were Operating.

The Star mills of the company were operated yesterday without incident. The same conditions existed in the Painter hoop mills and the Lindsay-McCutcheon mills in Allegheny. The Amalgamated officials refused to discuss the action of the Joliet mill men in breaking away from the association in a body and going back to work. The report was not discredited. Keesport in preventing non-union men from entering the mills on Monday is reported to have stirred up the officials of the National Tube company, and before another attempt is made in this direction, it is said, a request will be made of the sheriff for protection. John Wordtt, who has been working at the National rolling mills of the tube company, came into the street about 6 o'clock, last night. A crowd of strike sympathizers caught and knocked him down and pummeled him severely. James Hanlon, said to be one of the leaders of the assaulting crowd, was arrested.

FAITH IN GOD'S JUSTICE.

Mrs. Sampson Said That the Admiral Had Not Worried Over Controversy.

New York, Sept. 11.—A staff correspondent of the World telegraphs from Concord, N. H., that he has had a talk with Mrs. Sampson, wife of the admiral, regarding his illness.

Mrs. Sampson is quoted as saying in part:

"I sometimes sit here alone on the lake shores and wonder what the people would say if they could only know how little the admiral thinks of this controversy over which the whole nation is interested. On my word of honor, I don't think he ever lost 10 minutes of sleep over it, no, not five. From the very first he has implicity believed that the right will prevail. His trust and perfect confidence in God's justice is sublime. I tell these details because I wish to settle once and for all these reports of his killing anxiety and mental collapse."

FOR ATTACKING PRESIDENTS.

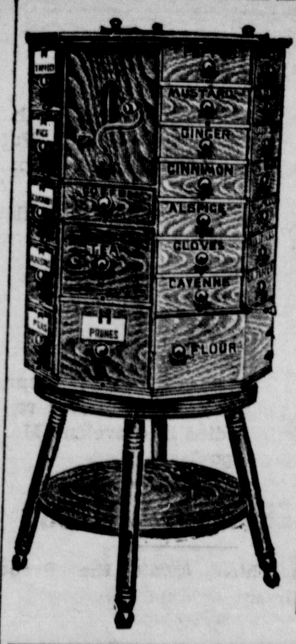

Pearre Says He Will Introduce Bill In Next Congress.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 11.—In discussing the attempted assassination of President McKinley, Congressman George A. Pearre, of Maryland, said:

"I will offer a bill in the next congress of the United States, amending the constitution so as to make an unsuccessful attempt upon the life of a president of the nation, treason, and the penalty, death. The man who strikes at the nation's head is a public enemy and should be treated as such."

Perry's Battle Commemorated.

Cleveland, Sept. 11.—The naval veterans took first place in the festivities attendant upon the Grand Army encampment. The eighty-seventh anniversary of Oliver H. Perry's historic triumph on Lake Erie was fittingly celebrated in a grand parade of naval veterans and a naval display upon the lake.

"When I came to town, I noticed a little, round swelling on my wrist," said a visitor from the country. "It bothered me, and one day when I saw a sign, 'Dr. John Doe,' I thought I'd go in and have it looked at. Well, I was shown into a fine room, and in a minute a pleasant looking man came in.

"'Dr. Doe?' I says and held up my wrist.

I expected him to turn over the pages and look up my trouble under S or W and then prescribe something. Instead he gave me a crack on the wrist like a thousand of brick! It was right on the swelling and hurt like a cannon ball. I jumped high in the air and yelled.

Back From the Philippines.

About all the volunteers are back from the Philippines, where they have had a long, hard experience of soldier life. Nearly all report the health of the soldiers good, except for frequent attacks of dysentery and diarrhoea. The 51st Iowa regiment on leaving San Francisco took a case of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with them, and many soldiers carried single bottles. This was soon used up and found so effective that a constant demand for it resulted in a large shipment being made from the factory at Des Moines. A teaspoonful of it in a little water always has the desired effect. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger, Druggist.

EMMA GOLDMAN ABUSES PRESIDENT

Says Mean Things--Don't See Why More Fuss Should Be Made Over Him Than Any Other Man.

SCARCELY KNEW CZOLGOSZ, SO SHE ASSERTED.

Had Brief Conversation With Him in Chicago—When Arrested She Denied Her Identity, but later Asserted She Had Intende to Surrender.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Emma Goldman, whose speeches are alleged to have filled the brain of Leon Czolgosz, the would-be assassin of President McKinley, was arrested here.

Miss Goldman's manner was defiant as she was led into the office of Chief of Police O'Neill, but she disclaimed all knowledge of Czolgosz and his crime, admitting only that she met him here July 12.

"Do you know that your words are what Czolgosz claims stirred him to shoot the president?" she was asked.

"I do not. I never advocated violence. I scarcely knew the man. I was leaving for Rochester via Buffalo when Czolgosz had a few words with me. He said he had heard me lecture at some memorial hall in Cleveland last May and that he wanted to know me. He said he knew I was in Chicago and looked me up. I scarcely remember anything about him save that his complexion was light."

"Then how do you know that this man is the one who tried to kill the president?"

"Oh," with a shrug of the shoulders, "I guessed that from what the newspapers say."

"What did you think when you heard that an attempt to kill the president had been made?" the woman was asked.

With a wave of her hands, and another shrug of her shoulders, she answered disdainfully: "I thought, Oh, the fool."

The prisoner's manner had been growing more and more excited, although she made an evident effort to control herself. In this she finally succeeded and launched into a discourse of the teachings of anarchy.

She declared that anarchy did not teach men to do the act which made Czolgosz despised and hated the world over.

'We work against the system and education is our watchword," she said.

"It was early last July when I came to Chicago to visit the Izaaks family," she continued, in answer to interrogations concerning her whereabouts recently.

Saw Czolgcsz in July.

"On the night of July 12 Izaaks was out of the house. The bell rang and I went to the door. The man who I learn through the newspapers was Czolgosz stood there. He said he wanted to see me. I was about to catch the Nickel Plate train, as I and Mr. Izaak's daughter were about to go to Rochester. He went to the Rock Island depot with us, but I was so busy taking leave of my friends that I scarcely noticed him. It was not a time when one would want to make new friends. At the depot I had the few words with him of which I have told. That was all there ever was between us.

"I am an anarchist—a student of socialism, but nothing in anything I ever said to Leon Czolgosz knowingly would have led him to do the act which startled everybody Friday."

"Not even in your lectures? He says your lectures set his brain on fire," asked the interviewer.

"Am I accountable because some crack-brained person put a wrong construction on my words? Leon Czolgosz, I am convinced, planned the deed unaided and entirely alone. There is no anarchist ring which would help him. There may be anarchists who would murder, but there also are men in every walk of life who sometimes feel the impulse to kill. I do not know, surely, but I think Czolgosz was one of those down-trodden men who see all the misery which the rich inflict upon the poor, who think of it, who brood over it, and then, in despair, resolve to strike a great blow, as they think, for the good of their fellow men. But that is not anarchy. Czolgosz (the woman pronounced the name with the greatest ease—Czolgosz may have been inspired by me; but, if he was, he took the wrong way of showing it."

Police Not Entirely Satisfied.

Police officials are not entirely satisfied with Miss Goldman's story. When Captain Schuettler and Detective Hartz discovered her at the home of one Norris, at 303 Sheffield avenue, she at first denied her identity.

"Hello, Miss Goldman," said the captain, as he entered the parlor. "Are you glad to see me?"

"I'm not Miss Goldman; I'm a Swedish woman and my name is Lena Larson," answered the woman, endeavoring to imitate the Swedish dialect.

"All right; I speak Swedish myself," said the police officer, as he poured out a few questions in the Norse tongue.

Miss Goldman didn't answer, affecting to misunderstand.

Detective Hartz meanwhile, had been investigating and had discovered a pen with the name "Emma Goldman" engraved thereupon.

"What does this mean?" shouted Captain Schuettler, holding the telltale article before its owner's eyes.

"It means that the game is up," she said. She then admitted her identity and accompanied the police to the office of Chief O'Neill.

In her conversation with reporters—and she talked with them at length twice during Tuesday—the excitement she was laboring under was suppressed, and only once did she break down completely. That was when Captain Schuettler led her from the office of Chief of Police O'Neill to the cab which was waiting to convey her to the woman's annex to the Harrison street police station. For a moment she cried. In a moment, however, this exhibition of distress was over.

She said her purpose in coming here had been to assist the anarchists who were arrested here several days ago. She had intended to give herself up to the police, but had delayed it, until the police she had derided so much had taken the matter into their own hands.

She was held on a warrant sworn out by Captain Colleran, charging her with conspiracy to murder the president. As her co-conspirators were named, the anarchists are already in jail.

"I shall insist upon an immediate hearing," she said, in speaking of the probability of a postponement being asked for by the city prosecutor. "They want me to go to New York without requisition papers, but I will not go; I know the legal ropes and I'll make them fight every step. And I'm not afraid to go at that."

Later Miss Goldman was interviewed in the woman's annex at the police station by an Associated Press reporter. She said in part:

"It is a dirty trick to charge in the newspaper reports that it was the result of an anarchist plot. Mark Hanna has been the ruler of this country; not McKinley. McKinley has been the most insignificant ruler that this country has ever had. He has neither wit nor intelligence, but has been a tool in the hands of Mark Hanna."

"What man in the United States, in your opinion, is of such prominence to warrant a plot?" she was asked.

"I am not in position to say," replied Miss Goldman, "who ought to be killed. The monopolists and the wealthy of this country are responsible for the existence of a Czolgosz. If imperialism would not grow in this country, if the liberties of the people were not trampled under foot, there would have been no violence."

Referring to the would-be assassin, Miss Goldman said:

"I feel that the man is one of those unfortunates who have been driven to despair and misery to commit the deed. I feel very deeply with him as an individual as I would feel with anybody who suffers. If I had the means I would help him as far as I could. I would see that he had counsel and that justice was done him."

Asked if she thought Czolgosz's act was praiseworthy from her point of view, she answered:

"I am not in a position to say whether it was good or bad. It is bad for the man who attempted to do it. I am not in his boots and know nothing about it. What I don't see is why they should make more fuss about the president than anybody else. All men are born equal."

"But some men rise above the equality of birth," a reporter suggested. "We are interested in the man whom we have made our chief."

Insulting Remark About McKinley.

"I don't think that men put him in office; I think that money put him in office," replied Miss Goldman.

In reference to Czolgosz's alleged statement that he was inspired by a lecture of Miss Goldman's in Cleveland, the prisoner said:

"As I have repeatedly said, it is foolish to think that this man would claim that he did that deed alone and unaided, and at the same time claim that I inspired him. If he had an accomplice and still claimed that he was acting alone, do you think he would have singled me out as the only friend he would not protect by assuming entire responsibility? He may have heard me in Cleveland, for I lectured there twice May 6 last."

St. Louis, Sept. 11.—It has been learned that Emma Goldman held eight conferences last Friday and Saturday with St. Louis anarchists in two saloons. The proprietor of one of the places says she departed for Chicago Saturday night, but may have left the train before reaching that city.

When Emma Goldman came into the rendezvous Saturday morning she was shown newspapers, relating the circumstances of the shooting at Buffalo, and asserting that she was accused of being implicated. She laughed and said:

"Let's see them prove what they allege."

"I have a notion to go straight to one of the newspaper offices," she is quoted as saying, "or to the police, and ask them what they want of me. I may go to Buffalo and brave it through there. Why, what can they do? They can prove nothing."

ALFONSO TO TRAVEL.

Spain's Boy King Will Visit Various Parts of Europe.

When in a few days President Loubet of France meets his friend and ally, Nicholas II. of Russia, he will welcome at the same time as a guest young King Alfonso of Spain. Together the president and the two monarchs will review the French army in its grand maneuvers near the ancient city of Rheims.

The young king of Spain's visit to his northern neighbor will be part of his extended trip through Spain and France. He expects to visit Gibraltar, the Balearic islands and Marseilles, ending the trip at Reims. It is quite probable that the tour will be extended to Germany, and Alfonso may pay a visit to his Teutonic "cousin," Emperor William. It is also possible that the return trip may be made through Austria, giving Alfonso an opportunity of meeting his old kinsman, the emperor of that country. Throughout his travels the king will be accompanied by General Weyler of unpleasant memory.

No Difficulty.

Phillips Brooks once gave a new version of the Jonah story to a wondering skeptic, who said he doubted whether a whale's throat was large enough to swallow Jonah. "There was no difficulty," said the bishop; "Jonah was one of the minor prophets."

SETTLE THE STRIKE.

Should Shaffer and Without Delay, Sentiment of Resolution Passed By

AN AMALGAMATED COMMITTEE.

Shaffer Denied He Had Been Authorized to Settle—Said Executive Board Could Not Delegate Such Power to Him and Advisory Board

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—It was ascertained last night that the meeting of the executive board of the Amalgamated association Saturday and Monday last finally resulted in the passage, by a unanimous vote, of a resolution expressing the sentiment of the body that President Shaffer should settle the strike, and without delay. After going over the entire situation very thoroughly, hearing reports from all strike centers and learning the temper of the men now idle, the board decided that the terms of President Schwab held out the greatest hope for the Amalgamated association and that they should be accepted as soon as possible in order that no other former union mills would be started and dropped from the list that President Schwab had agreed to sign for.

The statement to this effect was given so clearly and without any reserve that it was carried to President Shaffer. He denied that he had been authorized to settle the strike, and said that it was to go on as usual. He further declared that neither he or the advisory board, which includes the other national officers of the association, had any power to settle the strike and it could not be delegated to them by the executive board.

Peace Rumors Reached New York.

The rumors of peace reached New York during yesterday. Reports from that place came to the Amalgamated association. President Shaffer denied all rumors. When asked if there was any possibility of a settlement he said none that he knew of. Despite the strike the trust's earnings last month are said to have reached the $8,000,000 mark.

Some of the strikers said that they had heard that the executive board had taken some such action as had been reported, but they did not know of it positively. All who could be seen said that they believed firmly that an order for them to return to work would come in a few days and that by Monday of next week at the latest they would be permitted to go into the mills without "scabbing." If there is no settlement soon, it is believed that the executive board will be called again to meet and to take some more radical action to force the hesitating members of the advisory board to do something.

Other Mills Were Operating.

The Star mills of the company were operated yesterday without incident. The same conditions existed in the Painter hoop mills and the Lindsay-McCutcheon mills in Allegheny. The Amalgamated officials refused to discuss the action of the Joliet mill men in breaking away from the association in a body and going back to work. The report was not discredited. Keesport in preventing non-union men from entering the mills on Monday is reported to have stirred up the officials of the National Tube company, and before another attempt is made in this direction, it is said, a request will be made of the sheriff for protection. John Wordtt, who has been working at the National rolling mills of the tube company, came into the street about 6 o'clock, last night. A crowd of strike sympathizers caught and knocked him down and pummeled him severely. James Hanlon, said to be one of the leaders of the assaulting crowd, was arrested.

FAITH IN GOD'S JUSTICE.

Mrs. Sampson Said That the Admiral Had Not Worried Over Controversy.

New York, Sept. 11.—A staff correspondent of the World telegraphs from Concord, N. H., that he has had a talk with Mrs. Sampson, wife of the admiral, regarding his illness.

Mrs. Sampson is quoted as saying in part:

"I sometimes sit here alone on the lake shores and wonder what the people would say if they could only know how little the admiral thinks of this controversy over which the whole nation is interested. On my word of honor, I don't think he ever lost 10 minutes of sleep over it, no, not five. From the very first he has implicity believed that the right will prevail. His trust and perfect confidence in God's justice is sublime. I tell these details because I wish to settle once and for all these reports of his killing anxiety and mental collapse."

FOR ATTACKING PRESIDENTS.

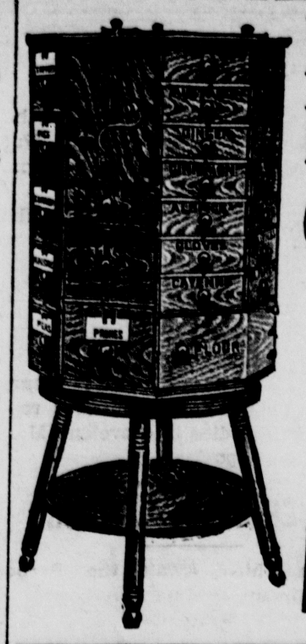

Pearre Says He Will Introduce Bill In Next Congress.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 11.—In discussing the attempted assassination of President McKinley, Congressman George A. Pearre, of Maryland, said:

"I will offer a bill in the next congress of the United States, amending the constitution so as to make an unsuccessful attempt upon the life of a president of the nation, treason, and the penalty, death. The man who strikes at the nation's head is a public enemy and should be treated as such."

Perry's Battle Commemorated.

Cleveland, Sept. 11.—The naval veterans took first place in the festivities attendant upon the Grand Army encampment. The eighty-seventh anniversary of Oliver H. Perry's historic triumph on Lake Erie was fittingly celebrated in a grand parade of naval veterans and a naval display upon the lake.

"When I came to town, I noticed a little, round swelling on my wrist," said a visitor from the country. "It bothered me, and one day when I saw a sign, 'Dr. John Doe,' I thought I'd go in and have it looked at. Well, I was shown into a fine room, and in a minute a pleasant looking man came in.

"'Dr. Doe?' I says and held up my wrist.

"'Ah, a weeping sinew,' says he, as if he'd been waiting years for a chance to study a case like mine.

"I didn't say anything, but kept my wrist out with the hand hanging limp while he took down a book from the shelf. I expected him to turn over the pages and look up my trouble under S or W and then prescribe something. Instead he gave me a crack on the wrist like a thousand of brick! It was right on the swelling and hurt like a cannon ball. I jumped high in the air and yelled.

"'Your weeping sinew's gone,' says the doctor quietly. 'Three dollars.'

"I was too much surprised to say a word, and I paid it. But no wonder your city doctors get rich. Three dollars! Any blacksmith would have done that job for the fun of doing it."—New York Post.

Back From the Philippines.

About all the volunteers are back from the Philippines, where they have had a long, hard experience of soldier life. Nearly all report the health of the soldiers good, except for frequent attacks of dysentery and diarrhoea. The 51st Iowa regiment on leaving San Francisco took a case of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with them, and many soldiers carried single bottles. This was soon used up and found so effective that a constant demand for it resulted in a large shipment being made from the factory at Des Moines. A teaspoonful of it in a little water always has the desired effect. Sold by Alvin H. Bulger, Druggist.

An old scheme of stupendous proportions has been revived. It is nothing less than the linking of the continents of Europe, Asia and America by a railroad which shall span Behring straits, and put Alaska, now almost out of the world, on a great highway of commerce. M. L. de Lobel, chief promoter of the scheme, is now in Dawson City. Like all promoters, he professes unbounded confidence in the success of his enterprise and talks as glibly about the millions to be spent thereon as small boys would talk of pennies or marbles needed in their games. Two hundred million dollars is the estimated required capital, and America is relied upon to raise one-fourth of the maunt. Details have not yet taken definite form, but in a general way M. de Lobel says that the span of Behring straits will be made by the use of immense ferry boats, capable of carrying the largest train. Through the central channel of the straits he says that there is a strong current that is never entirely closed. For the safety of the ferry it will be necessary to maintain an immense cable or perhaps to bridge the channel for use at least in the winter time. The road would connect with the Russian government line at Vladivostok and end at Circle City. With the completion of the Canadian line to Dawson the link from Circle to Dawson would be filled in, and, as M. de Lobel says, it would then be possible to travel from New York via Tacoma, Dawson and Vladivostok to Paris without changing cars. It is a stupendous project, but the world has seen greater marvels, and it may be possible that this modern Col. Sellers may live to see the realization of his dreams.

Representative Pearre, of Maryland, proposes to offer in the next congress a bill amending the United States constitution so as to make an attack on the president treason and the penalty death. Such a bill would undoubtedly pass unopposed and receive genuine popular approval. It is never too late to mend even so excellent a document as the national constitution.

News of President McKinley is still most encouraging. It is to be hoped that the crisis of his illness is safely past and that the predictions of rapid recovery will be realized. All fear will not be allayed until the president is able to leave his room and greet his friends.

Anarchists have been compared to rattlesnakes. This is an injustice to the reptiles; they never go out of their way to wound a man, and they give warning before they strike. A rattlesnake is not a coward, like an anarchist.

Nobody but the anarchists themselves are likely to raise any objections to the demand of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics for more stringent laws to keep the anarchistic element out of America.

The absence of Comrade McKinley and the reason for that absence cause untold sadness in the G. A. R. encampment at Cleveland.

Emma Goldman is in the grip of the law, and that grip will be firm. Put her where she will do no more harm.

It is generally conceded that the drouth is broken.

NATALIE'S AMBITION.

Widow of Deposed King Again Troubling the Balkans.

In "the land of perpetual unrest," the Balkan states of Europe, rumors of approaching war are again heard. This time the trouble is attributed to a woman, who is called by many the most troublesome, ambitious and unquiet of her sex. She is ex-Queen Natalie of Servia, widow of King Milan and mother of Alexander, the present occupant of the Servian throne.

Natalie is a proud, passionate, wealthy and influential woman, who bitterly resents her present enforced obscurity. She is intensely jealous of her daughter-in-law, Queen Draga of Servia, who possesses much influence over Alexander. Natalie's envy has also been aroused by the fact that the czar and empress of Russia have asked Alexander and his consort to visit their court, an honor never paid to Natalie when she was on the throne. The latter believes that the love of the king of Servia for his wife will not last, and she is plotting to regain her own formerly unbounded influence over the king. With that end in view she is trying, among other things, to stir up trouble between Servia and Roumania.

VEILS.

They Either Make or Mar a Woman's Complexion.

Many are the uses of veils. If the mere man were to be asked what they were for, he would no doubt answer, "To keep a woman's hat straight and hair in order on a windy day." But that is only one of the least things. Somewhere way back in the annals of time a passe woman saw the possibilities of a veil by way of improving her much worn complexion, and ever since it has been the great standby of the woman no longer young. Then take into consideration how convenient a fluffy mass of chiffon is to conceal some color in one's hat which does not go with the gown one is wearing or to give the hat renewed freshness when it has seen hard wear. Nowadays it is the style to wear almost continually a soft veil draped around the brim of one's hat, and this veil is changed to match one's different toilets. It is both a pretty and an economical style, as it saves expensive millinery from the dust and strong sunlight and, by changing its appearance, it makes one hat do the work of many.

"But I don't look well in a veil!" I hear some one say. That is because you don't make a discreet choice. Let me give you a few hints. In the first place leave all heavily barred and dotted effects alone. They would detract from the beauty of Venus herself. Leave those veils to women who are obliged to hide their complexions. You want something which will show yours off. Dark veils should be absolutely avoided by brunettes unless they are used simply on the hat. On the other hand there isn't one blond in ten who looks well in a white chiffon veil. The blond girl should adopt blue, green or black chiffon veils, a coarse black net with a saucy velvet dot or the thinnest of white illusion. Brown or red haired women look stunning in brown chiffon veils or in cream chiffon with white dots. The dark haired woman with a pale complexion looks best in a cream illusion with a black velvet dot set rather widely apart. She should not attempt white chiffon unless her hair is very dark or her complexion has some color. A gray veil requires vivid coloring and looks best on a red haired woman. The size and closeness of the dots should be according to the size of the features. A woman with a large face looks well in fewer dots, but of a larger size than those worn by her sister with delicate features. A plain cream illusion veil is almost universally becoming.

Walter Camp Describes Changes In This Season's Play.

ALTERATIONS ARE NOT RADICAL.

Representatives of Prominent Eastern Colleges Comprise Rules Committee—Safety Regulations Made More Explicit.

Changes in football rules for 1901 are numerous, but they do not provide for any radical departures from last year's regulations. They are more after the order of rendering explicit certain existing rules and will place sufficient power in the hands of the officials to guarantee strict enforcement. Many complaints relative to alleged ambiguity of various enactments of the rules committee have been made from year to year, and the alterations which have been instituted will serve to minimize misunderstandings, misinterpretations and disagreements between players and officials.

PAUL J. DASHIELL.
[Chairman of rules committee.]

The committee on rules is composed of men whose names are familiar throughout the whole football world. The members are as follows: Paul J. Dashiell of the United States Naval academy, Alexander Moffat of Princeton, John C. Bell of the University of Pennsylvania, L. W. Dennis of Cornell, Robert D. Wrenn of Harvard and Walter Camp of Yale.

In describing and defining several of the changes Walter Camp says:

"In rule 4 of the guide, section d, there is a further definition of a safety—namely, that a safety is made when the ball, kicked by a man behind his goal line, crosses the extension of the side line behind the goal line. It was generally supposed that the rules did not provide for such a contingency, but, as a matter of fact, they did.

"When a man standing behind his own goal attempted to kick the ball out and made such a poor kick of it that the ball did not cross his goal line at all, but crossed what would be the extension of the side line, and thus went into touch, by the existing rules the ball was dead as soon as it crossed the side line. But also by another rule when a ball was kicked out of bounds it did not go to the man who first obtained possession of it, but to the opponents. Hence a kick of this kind would result in the opponents having possession of the ball in touch. But then they must bring it to the point where the side line was crossed by the ball and there put it in play. The result would be that they would bring it down behind the kicker's goal, and immediately upon putting it in play there they would hold it on the ground and thus secure a touchdown.

"In other words, a ball which kicked by a man behind his own goal line did not cross the goal line, but crossed the side line, meant, if the rules were followed out, a touchdown for the opponents. This seemed rather a severe penalty for the misplay, and it was determined by the rules committee that such a play should be ruled a safety instead of a touchdown.

"Another alteration occurs in rule 12, section E. The difficulty that caused the change in this measure has not been appreciated very much, but there have been occasions even there where the delay of the game was prolonged unreasonably. As a matter of fact it was found that, although the rules committee intended that no delay should result over two minutes, an obstreperous team would make it more nearly four minutes in this way: Acting under rule 12 (E) that no delay arising from any cause whatsoever should continue more than two minutes, the players would delay, supposedly for injured man, for the full two minutes. Then the referee would tell them time was up, and they must play. But they would manage to occupy nearly two minutes longer by refusing to play, claiming under rule 28, section G, that the referee could not give the game forfeit to the other side until fully two minutes after he had ordered them to play. Just before the expiration of the fourth minute they would play.

"With that contention in mind, the rules committee added to rule 12, section E, the following: Any delay thereafter shall be penalized under rule 27 (E) 28 (C).

"It means that after the consumption of two minutes five yards shall be given for further delay of the game, this in no way interfering with the referee's making them forfeit the game at the end of two minutes of such delay."

TRACTION LINES TO COMBINE.

Principal Stockholders of Consolidated Company Accept Terms of Philadelphia Company.

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—The consolidation of the Philadelphia company and the Consolidated Traction company was practically effected when the Philadelphia company directors accepted the terms offered by P. A. B. Widener, W. L. Elkins and other large stockholders of the Consolidated company. A committee was appointed to consummate the deal by entering into a preliminary contract. By the terms submitted and agreed to the Philadelphia company becomes the parent concern, the stock of the Consolidated company being exchanged for the stock and bonds of the Philadelphia company.

The absorption of the Consolidated company's stock will make necessary an enlargement of the capitalization and bonded indebtedness of the Philadelphia company. The authorized capitalization of the Cansolidated Traction company is $30,000,000, and the actual capitalization is given as $25,000,000, divided equally between the common and preferred stock.

The authorized capitalization of the Philadelphia company is $21,000,000, divided at $15,000,000 common and $6,000,000 preferred. The amount of stock issued is $4,000,000 preferred and $14,753,000 common. The authorized bonded indebtedness of the Philadelphia company is $6,500,000. The consolidation of the Southern Traction company, which is also to be absorbed by the Philadelphia company is $5,000,000, divided equally between the preferred and common stock.

An old scheme of stupendous proportions has been revived. It is nothing less than the linking of the continents of Europe, Asia and America by a railroad which shall span Behring straits, and put Alaska, now almost out of the world, on a great highway of commerce. M. L. de Lobel, chief promoter of the scheme, is now in Dawson City. Like all promoters, he professes unbounded confidence in the success of his enterprise and talks as glibly about the millions to be spent thereon as small boys would talk of pennies or marbles needed in their games. Two hundred million dollars is the estimated required capital, and America is relied upon to raise one-fourth of the maunt. Details have not yet taken definite form, but in a general way M. de Lobel says that the span of Behring straits will be made by the use of immense ferry boats, capable of carrying the largest train. Through the central channel of the straits he says that there is a strong current that is never entirely closed. For the safety of the ferry it will be necessary to maintain an immense cable or perhaps to bridge the channel for use at least in the winter time. The road would connect with the Russian government line at Vladivostok and end at Circle City. With the completion of the Canadian line to Dawson the link from Circle to Dawson would be filled in, and, as M. de Lobel says, it would then be possible to travel from New York via Tacoma, Dawson and Vladivostok to Paris without changing cars. It is a stupendous project, but the world has seen greater marvels, and it may be possible that this modern Col. Sellers may live to see the realization of his dreams.

Representative Pearre, of Maryland, proposes to offer in the next congress a bill amending the United States constitution so as to make an attack on the president treason and the penalty death. Such a bill would undoubtedly pass unopposed and receive genuine popular approval. It is never too late to mend even so excellent a document as the national constitution.

News of President McKinley is still most encouraging. It is to be hoped that the crisis of his illness is safely past and that the predictions of rapid recovery will be realized. All fear will not be allayed until the president is able to leave his room and greet his friends.

Anarchists have been compared to rattlesnakes. This is an injustice to the reptiles; they never go out of their way to wound a man, and they give warning before they strike. A rattlesnake is not a coward, like an anarchist.

Nobody but the anarchists themselves are likely to raise any objections to the demand of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics for more stringent laws to keep the anarchistic element out of America.

The absence of Comrade McKinley and the reason for that absence cause untold sadness in the G. A. R. encampment at Cleveland.

Emma Goldman is in the grip of the law, and that grip will be firm. Put her where she will do no more harm.

It is generally conceded that the drouth is broken.

NATALIE'S AMBITION.

Widow of Deposed King Again Troubling the Balkans.

In "the land of perpetual unrest," the Balkan states of Europe, rumors of approaching war are again heard. This time the trouble is attributed to a woman, who is called by many the most troublesome, ambitious and unquiet of her sex. She is ex-Queen Natalie of Servia, widow of King Milan and mother of Alexander, the present occupant of the Servian throne.

Natalie is a proud, passionate, wealthy and influential woman, who bitterly resents her present enforced obscurity. She is intensely jealous of her daughter-in-law, Queen Draga of Servia, who possesses much influence over Alexander. Natalie's envy has also been aroused by the fact that the czar and empress of Russia have asked Alexander and his consort to visit their court, an honor never paid to Natalie when she was on the throne. The latter believes that the love of the king of Servia for his wife will not last, and she is plotting to regain her own formerly unbounded influence over the king. With that end in view she is trying, among other things, to stir up trouble between Servia and Roumania.

VEILS.

They Either Make or Mar a Woman's Complexion.

Many are the uses of veils. If the mere man were to be asked what they were for, he would no doubt answer, "To keep a woman's hat straight and hair in order on a windy day." But that is only one of the least things. Somewhere way back in the annals of time a passe woman saw the possibilities of a veil by way of improving her much worn complexion, and ever since it has been the great standby of the woman no longer young. Then take into consideration how convenient a fluffy mass of chiffon is to conceal some color in one's hat which does not go with the gown one is wearing or to give the hat renewed freshness when it has seen hard wear. Nowadays it is the style to wear almost continually a soft veil draped around the brim of one's hat, and this veil is changed to match one's different toilets. It is both a pretty and an economical style, as it saves expensive millinery from the dust and strong sunlight and, by changing its appearance, it makes one hat do the work of many.

"But I don't look well in a veil!" I hear some one say. That is because you don't make a discreet choice. Let me give you a few hints. In the first place leave all heavily barred and dotted effects alone. They would detract from the beauty of Venus herself. Leave those veils to women who are obliged to hide their complexions. You want something which will show yours off. Dark veils should be absolutely avoided by brunettes unless they are used simply on the hat. On the other hand there isn't one blond in ten who looks well in a white chiffon veil. The blond girl should adopt blue, green or black chiffon veils, a coarse black net with a saucy velvet dot or the thinnest of white illusion. Brown or red haired women look stunning in brown chiffon veils or in cream chiffon with white dots. The dark haired woman with a pale complexion looks best in a cream illusion with a black velvet dot set rather widely apart. She should not attempt white chiffon unless her hair is very dark or her complexion has some color. A gray veil requires vivid coloring and looks best on a red haired woman. The size and closeness of the dots should be according to the size of the features. A woman with a large face looks well in fewer dots, but of a larger size than those worn by her sister with delicate features. A plain cream illusion veil is almost universally becoming.

DON'T CARICATURE YOURSELF.

EDITH NEWKIRK.

Mary's Fractious Sister.

"I suppose your baby sister cries some?" asked one of the neighbors. "Cries!" said Mary. "Why, she just seems to look on the dark side of things all the time!"—Youth's Companion.

But also by another rule when a ball was kicked out of bounds it did not go to the man who first obtained possession of it, but to the opponents. Hence a kick of this kind would result in the opponents having possession of the ball in touch. But then they must bring it to the point where the side line was crossed by the ball and there put it in play. The result would be that they would bring it down behind the kicker's goal, and immediately upon putting it in play there they would hold it on the ground and thus secure a touchdown.

"In other words, a ball which kicked by a man behind his own goal line did not cross the goal line, but crossed the side line, meant, if the rules were followed out, a touchdown for the opponents. This seemed rather a severe penalty for the misplay, and it was determined by the rules committee that such a play should be ruled a safety instead of a touchdown.

"Another alteration occurs in rule 12, section E. The difficulty that caused the change in this measure has not been appreciated very much, but there have been occasions even there where the delay of the game was prolonged unreasonably. Just before the expiration of the fourth minute they would play.

"With that contention in mind, the rules committee added to rule 12, section E, the following: Any delay thereafter shall be penalized under rule 27 (E) 28 (C).

"It means that after the consumption of two minutes five yards shall be given for further delay of the game, this in no way interfering with the referee's making them forfeit the game at the end of two minutes of such delay."

SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

the pay roll, along with a bill from J. J. Strawn, of Salem, amounting to $9.78 for expert witness fees in the George case.

A bill amounting to $992.84 submitted by James Rinehart as the balance due him for the improvement of Pleasant street was laid over until the street committee inspects the work. John Lutton also handed in a bill of $150 for work on McKinnon avenue, which was also held over.

An ordinance fixing grade lines on Russet street was introduced and passed under suspension of rules. Engineer Kelly's estimate placed the cost of the improvement at $391.65.

The engineer also submitted an estimate of the cost of repaving Vine street, his figures summing up $554.70. The proposition to go ahead with the work was talked over at length and finally referred to the street committee with instructions to circulate a petition for the signature of all property owners of the street in order to avoid trouble in collecting assessments. Those benefited by the improvements will be obliged to pay half the cost.

A written complaint from residents of Rural lane in the vicinity of Jackson street, concerning a sewer in that immediate neighborhood which has been overflowing on different occasions, was read to council. The paper concluded by enumerating damage claims from the complainants, summing up to $76. E. W. Hill made a speech to council concerning the sewer and stated that tenants occupying property belonging to him, who are among the complainants, had suffered much inconvenience. He claimed that the money asked was not for damage, but for actual expense incurred in repairing the damage caused by the overflows of the sewer. The street committee was instructed to look after the matter.

Two bids, one being from George Phillips and the other from C. W. Heverly, for the construction of a stone wall on Calcutta road in front of the Burlingame property, were submitted. Phillips wanted $3.30 per perch and Heverly $3.40, the former being awarded the contract.

Mr. McLane called the attention of council to the fact that Thomas Arbuckle and George Peach, who had been appointed on the Pennsylvania avenue assessing board, were property owners in the East End, and, therefore, ineligible to serve. James Rigby and A. W. King were elected to serve with Smith Fowler, who was elected with Messrs. Arbuckle and Peach.

Attorney M. J. McGarry asked council what was going to be done with reference to the claims of property owners on Pennsylvania avenue in the East End, who allege that the city appropriated a portion of their land when the street was improved. The attorney stated that unless council made some effort to effect a settlement the matter would be taken into court. President Nice disputed the claims and told Mr. McGarry they would not be paid. Mr. McLane stated that Mr. Marshall was making an investigation, and would be ready to report at the next meeting. This was satisfactory to Mr. McGarry.

Attorney Walter Hill also asked council about the pay for a section of land purchased by the city from Colonel H. R. Hill at the Dry Run bridge. The matter was discussed for some time without a decision.

The session then adjourned.

PITTSBURG EXPOSITION OPEN.

Enormous Crush of Sightseers—Brilliancy of the Interior Amazes the Public.

Brilliant beyond any similar event in the Smoky City was the opening on the evening of Wednesday, September 4, of the new Pittsburg Exposition, and so enormous was the crush of sightseers that moving about at times was almost impossible. Manager Fitzpatrick declares without reserve that the throng that was present on this occasion was the greatest, the grandest and most brilliant ever seen at an Exposition opening in Pittsburg.

To say that the beauties of the new buildings aside from any other feature, caused wonderment and amazement is putting it mildly. The public was wholly unprepared for the brilliant illuminations, for the grand promenades, for the superb new music hall and for the really elegant booths and displays.

The new march, composed by the world's greatest bandmaster, John Philip Sousa, especially for the dedication of the new buildings and named "The Pride of Pittsburg," was received with wild enthusiasm, as indeed was all the music presented by the ever popular leader. Sousa and his Band will remain at the Exposition until September 17, after which they go direct to Glasgow, Scotland, to play four weeks at the Exposition. The programs prepared by Mr. Sousa for his Pittsburg engagement contain some of the choicest novelties found anywhere. The Sousa encores, thrilling because of their rhythmical strength, of course, will be in evidence at each of the four daily concerts.

Mechanical Hall, that home of industry and manufactures, is in gala dress, owing to the use of bright colors in the shape of bunting and of paint. One of the features of this department is a brick making plant of latest design in full operation. Interesting, of course, at all times, is the marvelous electrical displays of the Westinghouse Company.

Among the attractions one cannot mention too often are the Children's Theatre, with its life-sized figures, the Cinematograph, with its life-like moving pictures, and the $15,000 Roller Coaster, with its dizzy curves and deep dips.

Comments without number are daily being heard on the marvelous feat of the Exposition directors in constructing the two new buildings in the short space of four months. The thousands of out-of-town patrons of the Exposition, who are held in such high esteem, will rejoice with the management in the possession of the finest buildings absolutely seen at any permanent Exposition in the United States. They indeed are marvels of beauty, of completeness and brilliance.

The railroads are making preparations to carry enormous crowds to the Exposition. Excursions will be run every Thursday during the season on every railroad entering Pittsburg, the dates being September 12, 19 and 26, October 3, 10 and 17, the cost in each case being one fare for the round trip. Special excursions have been arranged on certain railroads for Tuesdays and Saturdays alternately. Out-of-town patrons can depend upon it that their interests have been most carefully guarded, and that everything has been done to make their stay at the Exposition comfortable and instructive.

COLORED BARBER WANTED FOR AN ALLEGED FORGERY

John White, a colored barber, formerly in the employ of Good & Johnson, on Sixth street, is missing from the city, and it is alleged he will be arrested for forgery if his whereabouts can be learned.

A few days ago White passed a bank check on John Hulmes, the West Market street confectioner. It was signed by Good & Johnson and at that time Mr. Hulmes did not doubt its validity. Later he learned it was forged, though he made no effort to have it cashed. A Second street sallon keeper is said to have taken in another of the bogus checks, which was also signed by Good & Johnson. A third one of the same kind is held by another local business man.

During the past few months White is said to have led a rather fast life, spending considerable money. He was popular in colored society and it is thought his inability to make sufficient money at his work to keep up expenses led him to commit the forgery.

SIMPLE REMEDIES.

Diluted ammonia is good for insect bites and stings.

A raw egg swallowed at once upon getting a fishbone in the throat beyond the reach of the finger, it is said, will dislodge it and carry it down.

A simple remedy for indigestion is the white of an egg beaten to a stiff froth and stirred into a wineglassful of cold water. This should be taken after each meal.

For burns and scalds, when no other remedy is at hand, try the effect of a piece of rag steeped in vinegar and bound round the scar. This is especially useful when cooking, for the vinegar is generally at hand.

To cure a severe case of colic take a teaspoonful of salt in a pint of water; drink and go to bed. This is one of the speediest remedies known. It will also prove efficacious in reviving a person who seems almost dead from a heavy fall.

One Passenger Too Many.

A good story is going the rounds of the offices of the Metropolitan Street Railway company concerning the wonderful presence of mind displayed recently by a new conductor on one of the company's trolley cars. This particular car was bowling along up Broadway recently when it was hailed and boarded by a company inspector.

The official hurriedly counted the passengers in the car and found that there were nine. Then he cast his eye up to the register and found that there had been only eight fares rung up. He disclosed his identity to the new conductor and called attention to the discrepancy.

Slowly and painfully the new hand counted over his passengers and then scanned his register.

"Begorra, an you're roight, sir," he said and promptly stopped the car.

"Say," he demanded, addressing the passengers in an authoritative manner, "wan o' youse fellows'll hov to git off the car-r."—New York Times.

A simple remedy for indigestion is the white of an egg beaten to a stiff froth and stirred into a wineglassful of cold water. This should be taken after each meal.

For burns and scalds, when no other remedy is at hand, try the effect of a piece of rag steeped in vinegar and bound round the scar. This is especially useful when cooking, for the vinegar is generally at hand.

To cure a severe case of colic take a teaspoonful of salt in a pint of water; drink and go to bed. This is one of the speediest remedies known. It will also prove efficacious in reviving a person who seems almost dead from a heavy fall.

One Passenger Too Many.

A good story is going the rounds of the offices of the Metropolitan Street Railway company concerning the wonderful presence of mind displayed recently by a new conductor on one of the company's trolley cars. This particular car was bowling along up Broadway recently when it was hailed and boarded by a company inspector.

The official hurriedly counted the passengers in the car and found that there were nine. Then he cast his eye up to the register and found that there had been only eight fares rung up. He disclosed his identity to the new conductor and called attention to the discrepancy.

Slowly and painfully the new hand counted over his passengers and then scanned his register.

"Begorra, an you're roight, sir," he said and promptly stopped the car.

"Say," he demanded, addressing the passengers in an authoritative manner, "wan o' youse fellows'll hov to git off the car-r."—New York Times.

COLORED BARBER WANTED FOR AN ALLEGED FORGERY

John White, a colored barber, formerly in the employ of Good & Johnson, on Sixth street, is missing from the city, and it is alleged he will be arrested for forgery if his whereabouts can be learned.

A few days ago White passed a bank check on John Hulmes, the West Market street confectioner. It was signed by Good & Johnson and at that time Mr. Hulmes did not doubt its validity. Later he learned it was forged, though he made no effort to have it cashed. A Second street saloon keeper is said to have taken in another of the bogus checks, which was also signed by Good & Johnson. A third one of the same kind is held by another local business man.

During the past few months White is said to have led a rather fast life, spending considerable money. He was popular in colored society and it is thought his inability to make sufficient money at his work to keep up expenses led him to commit the forgery.

The DOVE COLORED DOOR

By..... ELLA HIGGINSON

Copyright, 1901, by Ella Higginson.

MRS. FRAZER sat down heavily in a low rocking chair and took her darning basket on her lap. She drew a rather large black stocking up over her arm, thrusting her hand well down into the foot and spreading her fingers far apart. She examined it carefully with her head on one side and a little near-sighted squint in her eyes.

Then she threaded a needle and dropped a glass ointment jar, over which she always darned, into the stocking.

The doorbell rang.

"Oh, mercy on us!" said Mrs. Frazer. She jumped up stiffly, but so suddenly that the darning things rolled all over the floor. "Just because I'd set out to darn! I could embroider on them pillowshams a month and not a soul would set foot in this house. I wonder who it is!"

She lifted one edge of the shade and peered out cautiously. "Oh, my! It's Mis' Dean. I'd almost rather it had been the minister."

She gathered up the darning implements and the red canton flannel stocking bag and hurried into the bedroom. She returned in a moment, and with a triumphant air laid a partly embroidered pillowsham carelessly on the table, thrust a needle into it, and set her thimble beside it. Then she opened the door.

"Why, Mis' Dean! You don't mean it! Really, now! Well, I'm amazed. I thought you never was comin. Come right in. Don't mind your rubbers. My carpet ain't silk warp henrietty. I never take my rubbers off anywheres. It's too much trouble. If folks don't like my rubbers, they needn't like me; that's all. Love me, love my rubbers," she added, with a comfortable laugh, preceding her guest into the sitting room.

Mrs. Dean sank into a low chair. She was a small, colorless woman, with cold eyes and a stubborn mouth.

"Such a hill as you live on!" she said in an injured tone. "What possessed you to buy way up here?"

"Oh, just to give folks somethin to wonder about," replied Mrs. Frazer, with her mellow, exasperating laugh. "Folks are bound to ask questions, you know. If they don't ask what made us build way up here, they ask why we didn't put a porch clear round or a bay window in the bathroom or why we didn't run our pipes on the outside instid of the inside."

"Yes," said Mrs. Dean coldly. Her pale eyes were commencing to let out a little unsuspected fire. She had many nervous movements. Her veil was too short, and she kept putting up a carelessly gloved hand to draw it down over her thin chin. Each time it sprang back like a piece of rubber and curved in to her lips with every breath.

"You makin shams?"

"Yes; I was just workin on 'em."

The doorbell rang.

"Well!" said Mrs. Frazer. She got up more slowly this time. She was a large woman; she moved stiffly. "It never rains but it pours."

Sublimely unconscious of her rudeness, she went to the door.

"Oh, Mis' Hostetter! You, is it? Well, I'm right glad you come. Step in. I guess you know Mis' Dean?" she added humorously.

"Oh, my, yes!" said Mrs. Hostetter, sitting on the edge of a chair. She was tall and thin. She stooped slightly.

"I was afraid it might be the minister." Mrs. Frazer resumed her place.

"Well, talkin about the minister," said Mrs. Dean, lowering her voice, "I just want that you should notice how often he goes to Miss Huntley's. I've seen him go there time and ag'in. He's mighty scarce in his callin at our house, I notice. Why, I wonder where the trunk's a-goin in that express wagon!"

She peered out cautiously.

The other two women came to the window at once.

"I wonder!" said Mrs. Frazer, rubbing her chin. "There ain't a soul movin in round here anywheres that I know of. I can't think where it can be a-goin to. Bartlo's house is right in the way, so's we can't see, even if we go outside."

"Like as not some of your neighbors has had company come," suggested Mrs. Hostetter.

"Well, I'll run in and ask Mis' Bartlo tomorrow if she see where it went to." Mrs. Frazer sighed as she spoke and turned reluctantly from the window.

"Well," said Mrs. Hostetter, drawing a long breath, "I just run in to see if you'd heard the latest. I can't stay. I've got my week's bake gettin ready to go in the oven."

"If you mean about the way Mr. Davenport's been a-actin up," said Mrs. Frazer, closing her lips grimly, "I've heard."

"So've I," said Mrs. Dean. "I think that's just horrible. I don't mean to bid him the time of day if I die fer it."

"Well, I don't, neither. But I just want to tell you what Mis' Graham says when I told her. She waited till I got all through, and then she up and says she didn't think it could be true. After my a-tellin her! So I just told her it was true."

"What'd she say then?"

"What do you suppose she said? She just looked me in the eye and says ca'mly that if it was true she was sorry he'd done wrong, but that she didn't consider one person had ought to judge another; says she thought it was human nature to do wrong and that we'd ought to be sorry fer each other and help each other up."

"Why, the idea! What'd you say? I hope you give her a good one."

"Well, I did." Mrs. Hostetter spoke with triumph. "I told her I was a Christian and belonged to church and she wouldn't ketch me upholdin a man that'd turned hisself out to be what Mr. Davenport had. I asked her how you could pick out respectable folks if they was on speakin terms with that kind. Then she said somethin reel profane. She guessed that God could put his finger on 'em! Oh, that made me awful mad! I said, well, I wouldn't speak to Mr. Davenport and I didn't reckon Mis' Dean and Mis' Frazer would neither, and that we was the leadin ones in the church."

"Good fer you! I guess she didn't have anything furder to say to that, did she?"

"Yes, she did. That's what makes me so awful mad. She up and says then, still ca'mlike, that she didn't consider it would hurt any good woman to be kind to Mr. Davenport, even if he had done what was claimed ag'in him which she didn't believe—the brazen thing says that ag'in—and it might do him some good."

The door opened suddenly, and a slatternly girl burst into the room. She stopped and stared at the guests. Then she threw her hand over her face, giggled bashfully and exclaiming "Oh, now!" retired noisily.

"What do you think of that?" exclaimed Mrs. Frazer in a tone of exasperation, "after all I've talked to her, a-trouncin in here that way before people! A woman might as well be crazy at once as to keep a hired girl. They're that mortifyin!"

"Now, that makes me think," said Mrs. Hostetter. "I was sayin the same thing to Mis' Graham the other day, and what d'you s'pose she says? She says she thinks hired girls have an awful hard life. She feels sorry fer 'em. She keeps a rockin chair in the kitchen fer her'n and lets her go out ten times a week if she wants; says she thinks it's awful hard fer a girl to have to ask every time she wants to go anywheres. She says she gets cross sometimes and lets her temper go at her girl, and then she always goes back and apologizes. She ain't got any seech word as servant in her vocabillary."

"Such silliness," said Mrs. Frazer scornfully—"a-ruinin hired girls that way!"

"Well, I must say," admitted Mrs. Dean reluctantly, "that Mis' Graham's hired girl is an exception to the gen'ral run of 'em. She worships the ground Mis' Graham sets foot to and would run her legs off fer her."

"The worst thing she said," put in Mrs. Hostetter, "was that she didn't think women had ought to get together and talk over girls' faults; says she'd just as soon anybody would ask her how she liked her husband as to ask her how she liked her hired girl; says she's been guilty of such things herself, but she ain't goin to ag'in. Oh, I never heard such goin ons!"

"I guess she's crazy!"

"I guess she is. She says if we caught girls a-criticisin our faults we'd have a conniption fit."

"There goes that express wagon back ag'in em'ty," interrupted Mrs. Frazer in a perplexed tone. "I can't imagine where that trunk went to. Mr. Brown told me yeste'day that Mis' Brown wa'nt comin home fer a week, but mebbe she just telegrafted and come right on."

"But when you want real scandal," said Mrs. Hostetter in a low tone, "you have to go on a piece furder than Mr. Davenport."

Mrs. Frazer's pillowsham sank rustling into her lap.

"Is there anything worse?" asked Mrs. Dean breathlessly.

A little smile wrinkled Mrs. Hostetter's face. "Yes," she said briefly; "there's somethin worse."

"What is it?" asked both women at once.

Mrs. Hostetter was tantalizingly slow in replying. She looked out the window with an air of mystery glooming over her. "I don't know as I ought to tell you—if you ain't noticed."

"I ain't noticed a thing."

"I ain't, neither. It can't be in this neighborhood."

"It's in this neighborhood. It's within an ary of two blocks. I've see it a-goin on for three months. I've see it with my own eyes."

The other two women sat silent, crushed.

"You can both of you look out of this window without ever a-leavin your seats and see the front door of the woman it's about. It's as innocent lookin a front door as you'd find a-goin from one end of the street to the other. It's little you can tell about people by their front doors."

The other two women had started and looked out the window. The glance of each went jumping along from one door to another. There were a yellow door and a glass door and a grained door and a dove colored door. Their eyes stopped at the dove colored door. They looked at each other, then at Mrs. Hostetter. "Mis' Mayhew!" they exclaimed as one woman.

Mrs. Hostetter half closed her eyes. "Unh-hunh!" she said.

The silence was intense. The two women's faces were working with startled conjecture.

"A scandal about her!" breathed out Mrs. Frazer at last.

"Why, you'd think sugar wouldn't melt in her mouth," said Mrs. Dean.

"She sings in the choir."

"And's on the executive board."

"And the executive committee of the co-operative society."

"She's the treasurer of the Red Cross."

"And secretary of the 'Sociated Charities."

"Used to be," put in Mrs. Hostetter, amiably triumphant. "Ain't you noticed she dropped everything about three months ago?"

"As I live and breathe," said Mrs. Frazer, "so she did!"

"It hadn't made an impression on me," said Mrs. Dean.

"Well, when you see a woman that's been a-runnin everything in town," said Mrs. Hostetter loftily, "get up and drop it all of a sudden you just look round you and keep still. There never's very much smoke without a fire."

The other two women sat staring at the dove colored door. Who would ever

He approached the dove colored door.

have suspected a scandal behind a door of such a color—the one door on the whole street to suggest innocence and reticence—

Mrs. Hostetter broke in on their thoughts. "Mebbe you have seen a birdcage hung out on her front porch frequent if you hain't seen anything else!"

They drew shivering breaths. They had seen the birdcage.

"Well, then, mebbe you have seen that some days it was hung on a hook on the left side of that dove colored door and some days on the right!"

They looked at each other and cleared their throats simultaneously. Each face reflected back the mortification on the other. They shook their heads, honest, but ashamed. They would tell the truth though the heavens fell for it.

"Well, you might of, if you'd had your wits about you," said Mrs. Hostetter. "You needn't squirm so. You both deserve to have it rubbed in—a-livin right in range of her door, the two of you!" Her tone was bitter with reproach.

"I have seen that she's looked mighty pimpin when she did go out," said Mrs. Dean, recovering slightly.

"And it's been long spells between her goin outs," said Mrs. Frazer, with lofty eyebrows.

"She's had a pale, scared look. I have seen that she was a-concealin somethin."

"She ain't hardly made a call. She ain't even called on the minister's wife, and her with a teethin baby! She's made some kind of an excuse every time I've asked her to run in and fetch her work. She's even made excuses when I've offered to take mine in and set a spell."

"She don't want company," said Mrs. Hostetter. "I'm glad you've seen somethin, if only that much. If you had watched that dove colored door a leetle closer, you'd 'a' seen that when the birdcage was hung out on the"—

"Oh, my land!" cried out Mrs. Dean in a great voice for so thin a lady. She started forward in her chair. Her face was as gray as ashes. Her eyes had a wild, strained look.

"Why, forever!" gasped Mrs. Frazer, terrified.

"What's got into you?" demanded Mrs. Hostetter, unmoved.

"Oh, my land!"

"Mis' Hostetter! She's a-goin into some kind of attack. Git a doctor!"

"Some kind of fiddlesticks! Mis' Dean, what's got into you?"

"Oh, don't you see her eyes all set out the window? She can't speak. She can't even utter."

Mrs. Hostetter turned and looked out the window. She threw back her head and burst out laughing. "Oh, that's what's got into you!" she said and went on laughing as if she couldn't stop.

Mrs. Frazer's eyes followed hers. The three women sat staring at the dove colored door. Mrs. Mayhew had come out on her front porch. She had a birdcage in her hand. She stood looking off toward a fir grove that approached the house closely on one side. While they still watched she turned slowly and hung the cage up on the right side of the door. Then she went into the house and closed the door behind her, the most innocent looking door in that western town.

Mrs. Hostetter settled comfortably in her chair. "Now you'll see," she said. She drew a gold watch out of a pocket crocheted on her noble bust and opened it. "In just about 15 minutes by the watch—you'll see."

The other two women sat on the edges of their chairs and neither moved nor spoke while the minutes got themselves by. Their faces were pale with suspense; their breathing was noiseless; their backs ached from leaning forward; their eyes from watching.

Suddenly a man came out of the depths of the wood and walked rapidly toward the house. He kept among the tall ferns and in the shadow of the trees. He was a young looking man. His hat was drawn down over his eyes, and there was something furtive in his movements. He approached the dove colored door, which opened at once, and he disappeared within the house.

When the hearts of Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Frazer succeeded in pumping a little color back into those white, shocked faces, Mrs. Hostetter burst out laughing again.

"Who is it?" said one woman in a whisper.

"Oh, I don't know who it is. He goes there once or twice a week. It's been a-goin on for three months. Ever since she left off church and choir and liberry board and everything else. That ain't all. I've see fer a long time that there's some cool feelin's between her and Mr. Mayhew."

"And Mr. Mayhew such a nice man!"

"I never heard a word ag'in him yet."

"And it seems to be on his side. My mercy! She ust to come to the door with him every time he went down town, and last thing he'd do he'd up and kiss her, like a pair of fool lovers. They'd been married a long time too. He spent all his evenin's at home with her unless there was somethin to go to, and then he'd always take her. And if she sung a piece or played on the piano or declaimed, my mercy, he just set and couldn't take his eyes off of her! I never see his beat for admirin a woman and lettin his admire stick out all over him, so's everybody with half a eye could see it. He fairly carried his admire round on his sleeve! And when he come home to dinner she'd run out to the gate, and first thing he'd do he'd up and kiss her. Well, it's all changed now. He never goes a step with her anywheres, he never spends an evenin at home, and if she comes to the door with him he just walks off with his head down, kind of slow, and thinkin and never so much as looks back once."

"Mebbe somebody's give him a hint," breathed Mrs. Frazer.

Mrs. Hostetter smiled and cleared her throat.

"Mebbe somebody has," she said mysteriously.

"Mebbe somebody's sent him an anonymous letter."

Mrs. Hostetter fixed her unexpectedly with a stern gaze. "Mebbe some body has."

"Well, my land! Don't eat a body up with your eyes so! I wa'n't accusin you."

"Well, you can if you want," said Mrs. Hostetter, undaunted.

"Why, you never, did you?" exclaimed both women in a breath.

"Yes, I did," said Mrs. Hostetter, proud as a peacock with an unfurled tail. "I give him a hint in an anonymous letter, just the mildest kind of an intimation."

"Oh, what did you say? Tell us what you said."

They were a-quiver with excitement.

"Well, I just said"—she leaned back and half closed her eyes—"that when the birdcage hung on the right side of the door a young man went there early and staid all the afternoon. I told him"—

"Oh, good for you!"

"I glory in your spunk. You are grit."

"Good for you! Nerve—unh!"

"I told him"—Mrs. Hostetter swelled out her bust superbly—"that he didn't need to take any anonymous letter's word for it. All he had to do was to watch for hisself any Toosday or Friday."

"And did he?"

Her countenance fell. "Well, no, he didn't, I must say."

"What! Didn't he never?"

"No, not a once."

"Why, how do you know?"

"I've set here at my window every Toosday and Friday since. I've set a little back, so's I couldn't be seen, but I've never took my eyes off of that house. It's strained my eyes so, a-keepin 'em set right on one spot, almost without winkin fer fear I'd miss somethin, that I've had to keep a-bathin 'em in strong salt water. It's terrible good fer the eyes. Well, if her husband had 'a' watched he'd been sure to see the man, and then, of course, he'd 'a' gone straight to the house to—well, to—er—hum—beard him," she added in a deep voice, "in his—er—hunr—den. But he never went there a once. But I see him the day after he got the letter," she continued, with a return to triumph, "and he looked as gray as an ash pan. I bid him the time of day, and he could hardly speak. Oh, he felt it deep. It was pitiful to see him try to smile and all the gray wrinkles a-tremblin round his mouth," she added cheerfully.

"I don't see what ailed him, not to watch," said Mrs. Dean helplessly, not knowing the meaning of the word honor.

"I don't see, neither."

"Well, watch or no watch, he's been a mighty sick lookin man ever since. He looks as if he'd been pulled through a knothole. A man with a cancer or a case of appendikitis couldn't look much worse."

"That's so," said Mrs. Dean.

"Oh, mercy, my bread!" exclaimed Mrs. Hostetter, getting up excitedly. "I must run or it'll be spoilt."

"We'll have to take this here dove color door in hand," called Mrs. Dean after her. "If he can't put a stop to it, I guess we can. We can't have any such goin ons in this neighborhood."

Mrs. Frazer closed the door carefully after Mrs. Hostetter and returned to the siting room. She sat down and looked at Mrs. Dean. Mrs. Dean looked at her. Both smiled.

"It takes lots of folks to make a world," said Mrs. Dean. "The idee of her a-makin out so about other people's actin ups. Look at her husband—the whole town a-talkin about him. I reckon if women knew all that's bein said about their husbands they wouldn't be so fresh a-talkin about others."

"Yes," said Mrs. Frazer slowly, "but ain't that awful about Mis' Mayhew? I can't git over her a-havin such a virtuous lookin front door. I'll never trust dove color ag'in as long as the Lord gives me breath. If you'd 'a' told me to hunt up the length and the breadth of this hull town for an innocent lookin house," she added, with great solemnity, "I'd 'a' pointed out that one."

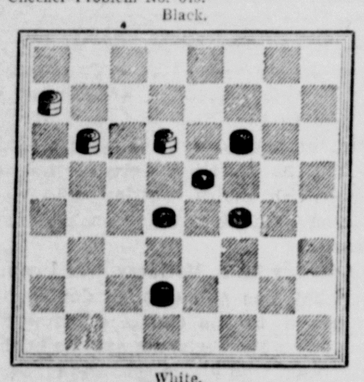

Mrs. Dean arose slowly. "I don't know but what I would of, too," she said, with a deep sigh. "Well, I've got to go too. I ain't got a week's bake ready to go in the oven—I get mine all done on the proper bakin day—but I've a plenty to do."

Mrs. Frazer went to the door with her. She bade her good afternoon there, but when Mrs. Dean had reached the gate Mrs. Frazer ran heavily down the steps and stood on the walk. She stood with her body balanced backward, holding one hand arched over her eyes. The wind was strong. It streamed her light gown out in flapping folds and gave bold glimpses of her thick ankles. "Oh, say, Mis' Dean," she called out, lifting her voice importantly, "I'll drop in tomorrow sure and let you know where that trunk went to!"

Monument to a Pig.

No stranger monument ever existed than that which was erected at the Hotel de Ville by the inhabitants of Luneburg, in Hanover, in honor of a pig. This, which took the form of a kind of mausoleum, contained a large glass case in which was hermetically inclosed a fine ham cut from the animal whose memory was to be handed down to posterity. Above was a handsome slab of marble, on which, engraved in letters of gold, was the following inscription in Latin: "Passers-by, contemplate here the mortal remains of the pig which acquired for itself imperishable glory by the discovery of the salt springs of Luneburg."

The Backslider.

"Many years ago," says the Providence Journal, "in a village not 20 miles from Providence a revival was in progress. A young man, one of indistinguishable twin brothers who had previously been observed, as was supposed, in an attentive attitude at the meeting, rose for prayers, walked to the anxious seat, and there wailed and moaned to such good purpose that the deacons were sure he was on the high road to salvation.

The next day he was overheard in the back yard at home chopping wood and swearing painfully at a refractory leg. When remonstrated with for his sudden backsliding, he merely said, "Oh, brother Jim couldn't go to the meeting last night, so I went and hollered for him."

The DOVE COLORED DOOR

By..... ELLA HIGGINSON

Copyright, 1901, by Ella Higginson.

MRS. FRAZER sat down heavily in a low rocking chair and took her darning basket on her lap. She drew a rather large black stocking up over her arm, thrusting her hand well down into the foot and spreading her fingers far apart. She examined it carefully with her head on one side and a little near-sighted squint in her eyes.

Then she threaded a needle and dropped a glass ointment jar, over which she always darned, into the stocking.

The doorbell rang.

"Oh, mercy on us!" said Mrs. Frazer. She jumped up stiffly, but so suddenly that the darning things rolled all over the floor. "Just because I'd set out to darn! I could embroider on them pillowshams a month and not a soul would set foot in this house. I wonder who it is!"

She lifted one edge of the shade and peered out cautiously. "Oh, my! It's Mis' Dean. I'd almost rather it had been the minister."

She gathered up the darning implements and the red canton flannel stocking bag and hurried into the bedroom. She returned in a moment, and with a triumphant air laid a partly embroidered pillowsham carelessly on the table, thrust a needle into it, and set her thimble beside it. Then she opened the door.

"Why, Mis' Dean! You don't mean it! Really, now! Well, I'm amazed. I thought you never was comin. Come right in. Don't mind your rubbers. My carpet ain't silk warp henrietty. I never take my rubbers off anywheres. It's too much trouble. If folks don't like my rubbers, they needn't like me; that's all. Love me, love my rubbers," she added, with a comfortable laugh, preceding her guest into the sitting room.

Mrs. Dean sank into a low chair. She was a small, colorless woman, with cold eyes and a stubborn mouth.

"Such a hill as you live on!" she said in an injured tone. "What possessed you to buy way up here?"

"Oh, just to give folks somethin to wonder about," replied Mrs. Frazer, with her mellow, exasperating laugh. "Folks are bound to ask questions, you know. If they don't ask what made us build way up here, they ask why we didn't put a porch clear round or a bay window in the bathroom or why we didn't run our pipes on the outside instid of the inside."

"Yes," said Mrs. Dean coldly. Her pale eyes were commencing to let out a little unsuspected fire. She had many nervous movements. Her veil was too short, and she kept putting up a carelessly gloved hand to draw it down over her thin chin. Each time it sprang back like a piece of rubber and curved in to her lips with every breath.

"You makin shams?"

"Yes; I was just workin on 'em."

The doorbell rang.

"Well!" said Mrs. Frazer. She got up more slowly this time. She was a large woman; she moved stiffly. "It never rains but it pours."

Sublimely unconscious of her rudeness, she went to the door.

"Oh, Mis' Hostetter! You, is it? Well, I'm right glad you come. Step in. I guess you know Mis' Dean?" she added humorously.

"Oh, my, yes!" said Mrs. Hostetter, sitting on the edge of a chair. She was tall and thin. She stooped slightly.

"I was afraid it might be the minister." Mrs. Frazer resumed her place.

"Well, talkin about the minister," said Mrs. Dean, lowering her voice, "I just want that you should notice how often he goes to Miss Huntley's. I've seen him go there time and ag'in. He's mighty scarce in his callin at our house, I notice. Why, I wonder where the trunk's a-goin in that express wagon!"

She peered out cautiously.

The other two women came to the window at once.

"I wonder!" said Mrs. Frazer, rubbing her chin. "There ain't a soul movin in round here anywheres that I know of. I can't think where it can be a-goin to. Bartlo's house is right in the way, so's we can't see, even if we go outside."

"Like as not some of your neighbors has had company come," suggested Mrs. Hostetter.

"Well, I'll run in and ask Mis' Bartlo tomorrow if she see where it went to." Mrs. Frazer sighed as she spoke and turned reluctantly from the window.

"Well," said Mrs. Hostetter, drawing a long breath, "I just run in to see if you'd heard the latest. I can't stay. I've got my week's bake gettin ready to go in the oven."

"If you mean about the way Mr. Davenport's been a-actin up," said Mrs. Frazer, closing her lips grimly, "I've heard."

"So've I," said Mrs. Dean. "I think that's just horrible. I don't mean to bid him the time of day if I die fer it."

"Well, I don't, neither. But I just want to tell you what Mis' Graham says when I told her. She waited till I got all through, and then she up and says she didn't think it could be true. After my a-tellin her! So I just told her it was true."

"What'd she say then?"

"What do you suppose she said? She just looked me in the eye and says ca'mly that if it was true she was sorry he'd done wrong, but that she didn't consider one person had ought to judge another; says she thought it was human nature to do wrong and that we'd ought to be sorry fer each other and help each other up."

"Why, the idea! What'd you say? I hope you give her a good one."

"Well, I did." Mrs. Hostetter spoke with triumph. "I told her I was a Christian and belonged to church and she wouldn't ketch me upholdin a man that'd turned hisself out to be what Mr. Davenport had. I asked her how you could pick out respectable folks if they was on speakin terms with that kind. Then she said somethin reel profane. She guessed that God could put his finger on 'em! Oh, that made me awful mad! I said, well, I wouldn't speak to Mr. Davenport and I didn't reckon Mis' Dean and Mis' Frazer would neither, and that we was the leadin ones in the church."

"Good fer you! I guess she didn't have anything furder to say to that, did she?"

"Yes, she did. That's what makes me so awful mad. She up and says then, still ca'mlike, that she didn't consider it would hurt any good woman to be kind to Mr. Davenport, even if he had done what was claimed ag'in him which she didn't believe—the brazen thing says that ag'in—and it might do him some good."

The door opened suddenly, and a slatternly girl burst into the room. She stopped and stared at the guests. Then she threw her hand over her face, giggled bashfully and exclaiming "Oh, now!" retired noisily.

"What do you think of that?" exclaimed Mrs. Frazer in a tone of exasperation, "after all I've talked to her, a-trouncin in here that way before people! A woman might as well be crazy at once as to keep a hired girl. They're that mortifyin!"

"Now, that makes me think," said Mrs. Hostetter. "I was sayin the same thing to Mis' Graham the other day, and what d'you s'pose she says? She says she thinks hired girls have an awful hard life. She feels sorry fer 'em. She keeps a rockin chair in the kitchen fer her'n and lets her go out ten times a week if she wants; says she thinks it's awful hard fer a girl to have to ask every time she wants to go anywheres. She says she gets cross sometimes and lets her temper go at her girl, and then she always goes back and apologizes. She ain't got any sech word as servant in her vocabillary."

"Such silliness," said Mrs. Frazer scornfully—"a-ruinin hired girls that way!"

"Well, I must say," admitted Mrs. Dean reluctantly, "that Mis' Graham's hired girl is an exception to the gen'ral run of 'em. She worships the ground Mis' Graham sets foot to and would run her legs off fer her."

"The worst thing she said," put in Mrs. Hostetter, "was that she didn't think women had ought to get together and talk over girls' faults; says she'd just as soon anybody would ask her how she liked her husband as to ask her how she liked her hired girl; says she's been guilty of such things herself, but she ain't goin to ag'in. Oh, I never heard such goin ons!"

"I guess she's crazy!"

"I guess she is. She says if we caught girls a-criticisin our faults we'd have a conniption fit."

"There goes that express wagon back ag'in em'ty," interrupted Mrs. Frazer in a perplexed tone. "I can't imagine where that trunk went to. Mr. Brown told me yeste'day that Mis' Brown wa'nt comin home fer a week, but mebbe she just telegrafted and come right on."

"But when you want real scandal," said Mrs. Hostetter in a low tone, "you have to go on a piece furder than Mr. Davenport."

Mrs. Frazer's pillowsham sank rustling into her lap.

"Is there anything worse?" asked Mrs. Dean breathlessly.

A little smile wrinkled Mrs. Hostetter's face. "Yes," she said briefly; "there's somethin worse."

"What is it?" asked both women at once.

Mrs. Hostetter was tantalizingly slow in replying. She looked out the window with an air of mystery glooming over her. "I don't know as I ought to tell you—if you ain't noticed."

"I ain't noticed a thing."

"I ain't, neither. It can't be in this neighborhood."

"It's in this neighborhood. It's within an ary of two blocks. I've see it a-goin on for three months. I've see it with my own eyes."

The other two women sat silent, crushed.

"You can both of you look out of this window without ever a-leavin your seats and see the front door of the woman it's about. It's as innocent lookin a front door as you'd find a-goin from one end of the street to the other. It's little you can tell about people by their front doors."

The other two women had started and looked out the window. The glance of each went jumping along from one door to another. There were a yellow door and a glass door and a grained door and a dove colored door. Their eyes stopped at the dove colored door. They looked at each other, then at Mrs. Hostetter. "Mis' Mayhew!" they exclaimed as one woman.

Mrs. Hostetter half closed her eyes. "Unh-hunh!" she said.

The silence was intense. The two women's faces were working with startled conjecture.

"A scandal about her!" breathed out Mrs. Frazer at last.

"Why, you'd think sugar wouldn't melt in her mouth," said Mrs. Dean.

"She sings in the choir."

"And's on the executive board."

"And the executive committee of the co-operative society."

"She's the treasurer of the Red Cross."

"And secretary of the 'Sociated Charities."

"Used to be," put in Mrs. Hostetter, amiably triumphant. "Ain't you noticed she dropped everything about three months ago?"

"As I live and breathe," said Mrs. Frazer, "so she did!"

"It hadn't made an impression on me," said Mrs. Dean.

"Well, when you see a woman that's been a-runnin everything in town," said Mrs. Hostetter loftily, "get up and drop it all of a sudden you just look round you and keep still. There never's very much smoke without a fire."

The other two women sat staring at the dove colored door. Who would ever

He approached the dove colored door.

have suspected a scandal behind a door of such a color—the one door on the whole street to suggest innocence and reticence—

Mrs. Hostetter broke in on their thoughts. "Mebbe you have seen a birdcage hung out on her front porch frequent if you hain't seen anything else!"

They drew shivering breaths. They had seen the birdcage.

"Well, then, mebbe you have seen that some days it was hung on a hook on the left side of that dove colored door and some days on the right!"

They looked at each other and cleared their throats simultaneously. Each face reflected back the mortification on the other. They shook their heads, honest, but ashamed. They would tell the truth though the heavens fell for it.

"Well, you might of, if you'd had your wits about you," said Mrs. Hostetter. "You needn't squirm so. You both deserve to have it rubbed in—a-livin right in range of her door, the two of you!" Her tone was bitter with reproach.

"I have seen that she's looked mighty pimpin when she did go out," said Mrs. Dean, recovering slightly.

"And it's been long spells between her goin outs," said Mrs. Frazer, with lofty eyebrows.

"She's had a pale, scared look. I have seen that she was a-concealin somethin."

"She ain't hardly made a call. She ain't even called on the minister's wife, and her with a teethin baby! She's made some kind of an excuse every time I've asked her to run in and fetch her work. She's even made excuses when I've offered to take mine in and set a spell."

"She don't want company," said Mrs. Hostetter. "I'm glad you've seen somethin, if only that much. If you had watched that dove colored door a leetle closer, you'd 'a' seen that when the birdcage was hung out on the"—

"Oh, my land!" cried out Mrs. Dean in a great voice for so thin a lady. She started forward in her chair. Her face was as gray as ashes. Her eyes had a wild, strained look.

"Why, forever!" gasped Mrs. Frazer, terrified.

"What's got into you?" demanded Mrs. Hostetter, unmoved.

"Oh, my land!"

"Mis' Hostetter! She's a-goin into some kind of attack. Git a doctor!"

"Some kind of fiddlesticks! Mis' Dean, what's got into you?"

"Oh, don't you see her eyes all set out the window? She can't speak. She can't even utter."

Mrs. Hostetter turned and looked out the window. She threw back her head and burst out laughing. "Oh, that's what's got into you!" she said and went on laughing as if she couldn't stop.

Mrs. Frazer's eyes followed hers. The three women sat staring at the dove colored door. Mrs. Mayhew had come out on her front porch. She had a birdcage in her hand. She stood looking off toward a fir grove that approached the house closely on one side. While they still watched she turned slowly and hung the cage up on the right side of the door. Then she went into the house and closed the door behind her, the most innocent looking door in that western town.

Mrs. Hostetter settled comfortably in her chair. "Now you'll see," she said. She drew a gold watch out of a pocket crocheted on her noble bust and opened it. "In just about 15 minutes by the watch—you'll see."

The other two women sat on the edges of their chairs and neither moved nor spoke while the minutes got themselves by. Their faces were pale with suspense; their breathing was noiseless; their backs ached from leaning forward; their eyes from watching.

Suddenly a man came out of the depths of the wood and walked rapidly toward the house. He kept among the tall ferns and in the shadow of the trees. He was a young looking man. His hat was drawn down over his eyes, and there was something furtive in his movements. He approached the dove colored door, which opened at once, and he disappeared within the house.

When the hearts of Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Frazer succeeded in pumping a little color back into those white, shocked faces, Mrs. Hostetter burst out laughing again.

"Who is it?" said one woman in a whisper.

"Oh, I don't know who it is. He goes there once or twice a week. It's been a-goin on for three months. Ever since she left off church and choir and liberry board and everything else. That ain't all. I've see fer a long time that there's some cool feelin's between her and Mr. Mayhew."

"And Mr. Mayhew such a nice man!"

"I never heard a word ag'in him yet."

"And it seems to be on his side. My mercy! She ust to come to the door with him every time he went down town, and last thing he'd do he'd up and kiss her, like a pair of fool lovers. They'd been married a long time too. He spent all his evenin's at home with her unless there was somethin to go to, and then he'd always take her. And if she sung a piece or played on the piano or declaimed, my mercy, he just set and couldn't take his eyes off of her! I never see his beat for admirin a woman and lettin his admire stick out all over him, so's everybody with half a eye could see it. He fairly carried his admire round on his sleeve! And when he come home to dinner she'd run out to the gate, and first thing he'd do he'd up and kiss her. Well, it's all changed now. He never goes a step with her anywheres, he never spends an evenin at home, and if she comes to the door with him he just walks off with his head down, kind of slow, and thinkin and never so much as looks back once."

"Mebbe somebody's give him a hint," breathed Mrs. Frazer.

Mrs. Hostetter smiled and cleared her throat.

"Mebbe somebody has," she said mysteriously.

"Mebbe somebody's sent him an anonymous letter."

Mrs. Hostetter fixed her unexpectedly with a stern gaze. "Mebbe somebody has."

"Well, my land! Don't eat a body up with your eyes so! I wa'n't accusin you."

"Well, you can if you want," said Mrs. Hostetter, undaunted.

"Why, you never, did you?" exclaimed both women in a breath.

"Yes, I did," said Mrs. Hostetter, proud as a peacock with an unfurled tail. "I give him a hint in an anonymous letter, just the mildest kind of an intimation."

"Oh, what did you say? Tell us what you said."

They were a-quiver with excitement.

"Well, I just said"—she leaned back and half closed her eyes—"that when the birdcage hung on the right side of the door a young man went there early and staid all the afternoon. I told him"—

"Oh, good for you!"

"I glory in your spunk. You are grit."

"Good for you! Nerve—unh!"

"I told him"—Mrs. Hostetter swelled out her bust superbly—"that he didn't need to take any anonymous letter's word for it. All he had to do was to watch for hisself any Toosday or Friday."

"And did he?"

Her countenance fell. "Well, no, he didn't, I must say."

"What! Didn't he never?"

"No, not a once."

"Why, how do you know?"

"I've set here at my window every Toosday and Friday since. I've set a little back, so's I couldn't be seen, but I've never took my eyes off of that house. It's strained my eyes so, a-keepin 'em set right on one spot, almost without winkin fer fear I'd miss somethin, that I've had to keep a-bathin 'em in strong salt water. It's terrible good fer the eyes. Well, if her husband had 'a' watched he'd been sure to see the man, and then, of course, he'd 'a' gone straight to the house to—well, to—er—hum—beard him," she added in a deep voice, "in his—er—hunr—den. But he never went there a once. But I see him the day after he got the letter," she continued, with a return to triumph, "and he looked as gray as an ash pan. I bid him the time of day, and he could hardly speak. Oh, he felt it deep. It was pitiful to see him try to smile and all the gray wrinkles a-tremblin round his mouth," she added cheerfully.

"I don't see what ailed him, not to watch," said Mrs. Dean helplessly, not knowing the meaning of the word honor.

"I don't see, neither."

"Well, watch or no watch, he's been a mighty sick lookin man ever since. He looks as if he'd been pulled through a knothole. A man with a cancer or a case of appendikitis couldn't look much worse."

"That's so," said Mrs. Dean.

"Oh, mercy, my bread!" exclaimed Mrs. Hostetter, getting up excitedly. "I must run or it'll be spoilt."

"We'll have to take this here dove color door in hand," called Mrs. Dean after her. "If he can't put a stop to it, I guess we can. We can't have any such goin ons in this neighborhood."

Mrs. Frazer closed the door carefully after Mrs. Hostetter and returned to the siting room. She sat down and looked at Mrs. Dean. Mrs. Dean looked at her. Both smiled.

"It takes lots of folks to make a world," said Mrs. Dean. "The idee of her a-makin out so about other people's actin ups. Look at her husband—the whole town a-talkin about him. I reckon if women knew all that's bein said about their husbands they wouldn't be so fresh a-talkin about others."

"Yes," said Mrs. Frazer slowly, "but ain't that awful about Mis' Mayhew? I can't git over her a-havin such a virtuous lookin front door. I'll never trust dove color ag'in as long as the Lord gives me breath. If you'd 'a' told me to hunt up the length and the breadth of this hull town for an innocent lookin house," she added, with great solemnity, "I'd 'a' pointed out that one."

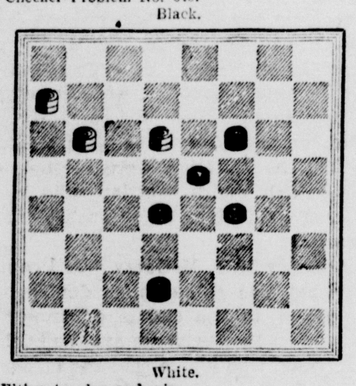

Mrs. Dean arose slowly. "I don't know but what I would of, too," she said, with a deep sigh. "Well, I've got to go too. I ain't got a week's bake ready to go in the oven—I get mine all done on the proper bakin day—but I've a plenty to do."

Mrs. Frazer went to the door with her. She bade her good afternoon there, but when Mrs. Dean had reached the gate Mrs. Frazer ran heavily down the steps and stood on the walk. She stood with her body balanced backward, holding one hand arched over her eyes. The wind was strong. It streamed her light gown out in flapping folds and gave bold glimpses of her thick ankles. "Oh, say, Mis' Dean," she called out, lifting her voice importantly, "I'll drop in tomorrow sure and let you know where that trunk went to!"

Monument to a Pig.

No stranger monument ever existed than that which was erected at the Hotel de Ville by the inhabitants of Luneburg, in Hanover, in honor of a pig. This, which took the form of a kind of mausoleum, contained a large glass case in which was hermetically inclosed a fine ham cut from the animal whose memory was to be handed down to posterity. Above was a handsome slab of marble, on which, engraved in letters of gold, was the following inscription in Latin: "Passersby, contemplate here the mortal remains of the pig which acquired for itself imperishable glory by the discovery of the salt springs of Luneburg."

The Backslider.

"Many years ago," says the Providence Journal, "in a village not 20 miles from Providence a revival was in progress. A young man, one of indistinguishable twin brothers who had previously been observed, as was supposed, in an attentive attitude at the meeting, rose for prayers, walked to the anxious seat, and there wailed and moaned to such good purpose that the deacons were sure he was on the high road to salvation.

The next day he was overheard in the back yard at home chopping wood and swearing painfully at a refractory leg. When remonstrated with for his sudden backsliding, he merely said, "Oh, brother Jim couldn't go to the meeting last night, so I went and hollered for him."

FED PRESIDENT THROUGH MOUTH.

Food Was Given Mr. McKinley Last Night, In the Form of Beef Juice.

SLIGHT OPERATION PERFORMED.

Few Stitches Removed and Skin Wound Partially Opened to Remove a Fragment of His Coat, Lodged Piece of Way Under Skin.

MILBURN HOUSE, BUFFALO, SEPT. 11.—The following bulletin was issued by the president's physicians at 10:30 p. m., last night:

The condition of the president is unchanged in all important particulars. His temperature is 100.6; pulse, 114; respiration, 28.

When the operation was done on Friday last it was noted that the bullet had carried with it a short distance beneath the skin a fragment of the president's coat. This foreign material was, of course, removed, but a slight irritation of the tissues was produced, the evidence of which has appeared only to-night. It has been necessary on account of their slight disturbance to remove a few stitches and partially open the skin wound. This incident cannot give rise to other complications, but it is communicated to the public as the surgeons in attendance wish to make their bulletins entirely frank. In consequence of this separation of the edges of the surface wound the healing of the same will be somewhat delayed. The president is now well enough to begin to take nourishment by the mouth in the form of pure beef juice. Signed,

M. D. Mann,

George B. Cortelyou, Secretary to the President.

When the physicians emerged from the house, about 11:20, last night, they had been in consultation about an hour and 50 minutes, and announced to the waiting newspaper men that the president's condition was unchanged in every important particular.

Created Some Uneasiness.

The length of the consultation had created some uneasiness and this was somewhat increased when it was learned that Dr. McBurney, who had intended to leave for Stockbridge, Conn., at 11:20, had missed his train and had decided to remain over until night. But the doctor himself did all he could to dispel the idea that the change in his plans portended anything serious. In fact, he took occasion to announce as an additional evidence of the improvement of the patient that it had been decided to begin to give the president nourishment through the mouth last night, instead of waiting until today, as had been intended. Beef juice had been prepared, Dr. McBurney announced and it was being administered as the physicians left. The other physicians who listened to Dr. McBurney's statement assented to it and then all entered an automobile and were whisked away. Immediately afterward a storm which had been gathering broke and for a few minutes the rain came down in torrents.

ROOSEVELT LEFT BUFFALO.

Believes President Will Recover—Surprised That Any Person Should Attack McKinley.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 11.—Vice President Roosevelt left the city last night about 9:15 for Oyster Bay perfectly confident that the president will recover.

Questions as as to the mode of procedure so far as the state was concerned, he said:

"I see no need for the call of an extraordinary grand jury. The grand jury now in session, composed of American citizens, will undoubtedly take care of the would-be assassin and the authorities of Erie county will, for county, state and national pride, make a vigorous prosecution. Unless Governor Odell is asked to interfere, I see no need of his calling an extra term or deputizing an assistant attorney general to prosecute."

Asked as to the enacting of legislation against anarchists, he said:

Roosevelt Couldn't Understand It.

"I have not thought much on the matter. What has disturbed me has been to find a reason for even anarchists to attack a man like President McKinley. Here is the one country where they are allowed perfect freedom of speech. Here, as the ruler, is a man descended from farmer stock, self-made. Here is a man who has no fortune or no means other than that which he may manage to save out of his salary as president. Probably many a working man in the United States today has as large an amount of real estate as Mr. McKinley. In addition he is a kindly disposed Christian gentleman, and in every great emergency in which he could act, he has been a friend of the common people. Why should he be shot at then even by anarchists?"

When Mr. Roosevelt came out of the Milburn mansion last night a United States military officer, Major Mann, of the local post, shook hands with him.

"The last time I saw you," said

CAN YOU FIND THE FOX WHICH IS IN THE PICTURE?

Major Mann, "was in Cuba, just after a fight in which you took part."

"Oh, yes," cried the vice president, "I remember now. I'm so glad to see you, so glad," and then there were reminiscences with frequent handshakes.

Harrisburg, Sept. 11.—The plans for the ceremonies incident to the visit of the Pennsylvania commission to the Pan-American exposition, September 19 and 20, will probably be greatly modified by reason of the shooting of President McKinley. The original program contemplated the holding of Pennsylvania day ceremonies with speeches by Governor Stone and others in the temple of music.

In view of the painful interest which attaches to the hall by reason of the attack upon the president, it has been considered by the commissioners advisable to omit the ceremonies altogether. Instead, Governor Stone will receive the Pennsylvania visitors to the fair in a gallery in the reception hall of the Pennsylvania building and there will proably be no speeches.

ANARCHISTS NON-COMMITAL.

Two Arrested at Pittsburg Would Tell Little of Importance to the Police.

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—"Awaiting developments," was the bulletin of the detective bureau Tuesday in regard to Harry O. Gordon and Carl Nold, the local anarchists arrested Monday. It was expected that a secret service agent from Buffalo would reach here later in the day Tuesday to assist in "sweating" the men for information regarding Emma Goldman, and incidentally to try to connect the female anarchist with the plot to take the life of President McKinley.

In the event that the Buffalo officials do not come to Pittsburg, the men will be held pending developments in the case. The theory that a plot was formed to assassinate the president is the working basis of the officials who are so untiringly trying to unravel the affair. If this theory be correct, the statement of the assassin, Czolgosz, that it was Emma Goldman's teachings that persuaded him to commit the deed would, the police believe, have a tendency to connect the female anarchist with the actual shooting, although in an indirect way.

Gordon and Nold May Be Implicated.

Following the same course of reasoning, the police also believe that in the event of Emma Goldman being convicted of complicity in the crime then Gordon and Nold would be relatively guilty, as they are known to be intimate friends of the woman.

The fact that Emma Goldman was here not later than September 4, and that Gordon and Nold saw her on that date, together with the fact that Gordon acted as her agent here, convinces the local police that the two men now under arrest are conversant with her recent movements. A strenuous effort will be made to have the men tell what they know of her. The "third degree" will be given the men and the police hope to get some information which will aid them in their case against Emma Goldman. If this information can be had the police will be satisfied.

An interpreter will be secured to translate the papers and letters found in Gordon's house. Most of these letters are in German, but several are in Polish. The police are doubtful if the translation will result in any tangible evidence, but the chances that it may will not be overlooked.

TRUSTS IN GOD, DOES MRS. M'KINLEY.

President's Wife Locks for Favorable Outcome—Knows of the Shooting.

Buffalo, Sept. 11.—"We trust in God and believe Mr. McKinley is going to recover speedily. I know that he has the best of medical attendance that can be obtained and am perfectly satisfied that these doctors are handling the case splendidly. The case is progressing so that we are very happy."

Mrs. McKinley, wife of the president, said this Monday at the Milburn house just after the 4 o'clock bulletin of the physicians was issued.

Statements wer published Monday that she did not know an attempt had been made on her husband's life and that his indisposition had been explained to her by saying that he had been injured by a fall. This story met with a most sweping denial.

AGAINST SUNDAY VIOLATIONS.

Judge Hendrickson Came Out Strongly at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 11.—Supreme Court Justice Hendrickson exploded a bombshell in court when he charged the grand jury on the Sunday opening question. He said it was their duty to investigate the alleged barter and sale of licenses by certain members of the city council; that the saloon and hotel men should be indicted for persistently violating the Sunday laws, also that the mayor and chief of police could be indicted for misdemeanors for not carrying out the order of the court in failing to suppress the Sunday disorders.

The judge was direct in his words and left no doubt as to his feeling. He suggested that if the jurors felt that it would consume too much time to investigate the irregularities in city council they could adjourn from time to time at their convenience and summon each member before them. From the tone of the judge's charge, he wants a sweeping investigation of the license committee of common council, and the action of the mayor and chief of police. The jury has Congressman Gardner as its foreman. Considerable excitement has been caused in the city by the charge, as it is feared the jury will have to indict every saloon man in the city.

BIG INTERNATIONAL GAMES.

American and English Athletes Meet In New York Sept. 21.

The international athletic tournament to be held on Berkeley oval, New York, Sept. 21, will be one of the most interesting sporting events of the year. Athletes from Oxford and Cambridge, the leading English universities, will meet picked teams from Yale and Harvard, and these competitions, together with the America's cup races off Sandy Hook and the big rifle shooting tournament at Sea Girt, N. J., form a fitting climax to the greatest year of international sport on record. American athletes have been invading the British isles all summer, and the fact that the sons of John Bull made good showings against them and, in fact, thrashed them soundly in several branches of sport, lends additional attraction to the forthcoming carnival.

American experts state unhesitatingly that our boys have the best chance for capturing a majority of events against the Britishers. While the transatlantic cracks are particularly strong in long distance running and will probably annex the points standing for those tests, our athletes hold the balance of power in the dashes and short sprints. Pole vaults, high and low hurdles, hammer throws and shot puts are also at the mercy of Yale and Harvard.

A careful weighing of the comparative strength of Yale and Harvard warrants the prediction that Old Eli will carry off most of the honors and should place to the credit of the blue no less than four events. Harvard would then have to win but one event to bring victory to the Americans, as but nine events are scheduled. According to the rules that will govern the matches, firsts only are to count.

Yale men are training at Travers island, New York, the country home of the New York Athletic club, while wearers of the crimson have been rounding into form at North Cohasset, Mass., William C. Whitney having

Some of the prominent Britons who will appear in the New York tourney are G. R. Garnier, J. R. Cleave, E. E. B. May, J. B. Bulkeley, S. A. Neave, E. A. Dawson and Cornish, the brilliant sprinter.

THERE ARE MANY ROADS

The Finger Posts Marking the Many By-Paths of Present Day Troubles All Seem to Point the Same Way—Lack of Nerve Force.

Day-by-day the columns of this paper bring new evidence from East Liverpool people of the great work being done by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills—Why they accomplish so much is easily explained—they are prepared with an eye single to restoring Nerve Force—they accomplish this object which no other medicine in the world has ever been able to do—that's why hundreds of East Liverpool people offer their testimony.

Mr. Cyrus Hauselman, of No. 279 Sugar street, East Liverpool, O., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are a fine medicine. It has done for me more to cure my old rheumatism than anything I ever took. The rheumatism had hung on for five or six years and was all in the legs and shoulders. I could not sleep and at times could not move with the pain. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got them at Larkins' drug store, corner Sixth and East Market streets, and they took hold finely, something nothing else ever did—the pain and stiffness is about gone. I am feeling strong and get about and sleep well. It won't take many more to cure me completely."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine company, Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

Questions for Women

Do you have periodical pains? Do you have frequent backaches? Are you nervous? Are you continually exhausted? Do you suffer every month? If you answer "yes" to any of these questions you are suffering from ills which Wine of Cardui cures. Do you appreciate what perfect health would be to you? After taking Wine of Cardui, thousands like you have realized it. Wine of Cardui insures freedom from female diseases. At each recurring menstrual period, if care be not taken, slight ailments will appear. Nervous strain, loss of sleep, cold or indigestion start disorders which are not noticeable at first, but day by day steadily grow into troublesome complications. Wine of Cardui, used just before the menstrual period, will keep the female system in perfect condition and render it invulnerable to disease. The medicine is taken quietly at home. There is nothing like it to help women enjoy good health. Wine of Cardui costs only $1. Test this remedy, which is indorsed by 1,000,000 cured women.

WINE OF CARDUI

Cairo, Ky., Sept. 6, 1899.

I take pleasure in writing a few lines in praise of your wonderful medicine, Wine of Cardui. It is the best medicine I ever heard of. I am thirty-six years old and have been sick all my life. I had a dozen doctors, but none of them did me any good. I have taken one bottle of Wine of Cardui and will take another with Black-Draught. I have been married six years and have a baby five years old. I had womb and kidney trouble. My monthly period was so bad that sometimes it came twice a month. I was too sick to do work for a family of three. I was in bed when I got the bottle of Wine of Cardui. Now I am up and can do most of my work. When I was sick I could not sleep at night. I sleep well at night now. A friend of mine advised me to use Black-Draught with Wine of Cardui. Mrs. ETTA KILLMAN.

BIG TIME AT BUFFALO.

Railroad Day at the Pan-American Exposition.

The second Saturday in September—the 14th—will be Railroad Day at the Pan-American Exposition. It promises to be one of the most interesting days of the great show at Buffalo. Elaborate arrangements have been completed for an interesting and novel demonstration. The grand parade on the Exposition grounds that day will be extremely unique and interesting. It will illustrate the different methods of transportation in use since Adam and Eve moved out of the Garden of Eden. There will be many striking novelties in the way of special features. Hon. Chauncey Depew will be one of the distinguished orators. The night illuminations and fireworks will be on a magnificent scale. The day and night festivities will be highly enjoyable for Pan-American visitors. Special low fares in effect over the Pennsylvania Lines will permit everybody to attend at small expense. For particulars about the cost of tickets, through time to Buffalo, etc., apply to nearest Ticket Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines. 69-ws-a.

FED PRESIDENT THROUGH MOUTH.

Food Was Given Mr. McKinley Last Night, In the Form of Beef Juice.

SLIGHT OPERATION PERFORMED.

Few Stitches Removed and Skin Wound Partially Opened to Remove a Fragment of His Coat, Lodged Piece of Way Under Skin.

MILBURN HOUSE, BUFFALO, SEPT. 11.—The following bulletin was issued by the president's physicians at 10:30 p. m., last night:

The condition of the president is unchanged in all important particulars. His temperature is 100.6; pulse, 114; respiration, 28.

When the operation was done on Friday last it was noted that the bullet had carried with it a short distance beneath the skin a fragment of the president's coat. This foreign material was, of course, removed, but a slight irritation of the tissues was produced, the evidence of which has appeared only to-night. It has been necessary on account of their slight disturbance to remove a few stitches and partially open the skin wound. This incident cannot give rise to other complications, but it is communicated to the public as the surgeons in attendance wish to make their bulletins entirely frank. In consequence of this separation of the edges of the surface wound the healing of the same will be somewhat delayed. The president is now well enough to begin to take nourishment by the mouth in the form of pure beef juice. Signed,

P. M. Rixey,
M. D. Mann,
Roswell Parke,
Herman Mynter,
Charles McBurney.

George B. Cortelyou, Secretary to the President.

When the physicians emerged from the house, about 11:20, last night, they had been in consultation about an hour and 50 minutes, and announced to the waiting newspaper men that the president's condition was unchanged in every important particular.

Created Some Uneasiness.

The length of the consultation had created some uneasiness and this was somewhat increased when it was learned that Dr. McBurney, who had intended to leave for Stockbridge, Conn., at 11:20, had missed his train and had decided to remain over until night. But the doctor himself did all he could to dispel the idea that the change in his plans portended anything serious. In fact, he took occasion to announce as an additional evidence of the improvement of the patient that it had been decided to begin to give the president nourishment through the mouth last night, instead of waiting until today, as had been intended. Beef juice had been prepared, Dr. McBurney announced and it was being administered as the physicians left. The other physicians who listened to Dr. McBurney's statement assented to it and then all entered an automobile and were whisked away. Immediately afterward a storm which had been gathering broke and for a few minutes the rain came down in torrents.

ROOSEVELT LEFT BUFFALO.

Believes President Will Recover—Surprised That Any Person Should Attack McKinley.

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 11.—Vice President Roosevelt left the city last night about 9:15 for Oyster Bay perfectly confident that the president will recover.

Questions as as to the mode of procedure so far as the state was concerned, he said:

"I see no need for the call of an extraordinary grand jury. The grand jury now in session, composed of American citizens, will undoubtedly take care of the would-be assassin and the authorities of Erie county will, for county, state and national pride, make a vigorous prosecution. Unless Governor Odell is asked to interfere, I see no need of his calling an extra term or deputizing an assistant attorney general to prosecute."

Asked as to the enacting of legislation against anarchists, he said:

Roosevelt Couldn't Understand It.

"I have not thought much on the matter. What has disturbed me has been to find a reason for even anarchists to attack a man like President McKinley. Here is the one country where they are allowed perfect freedom of speech. Here, as the ruler, is a man descended from farmer stock, self-made. Probably many a working man in the United States today has as large an amount of real estate as Mr. McKinley. In addition he is a kindly disposed Christian gentleman, and in every great emergency in which he could act, he has been a friend of the common people. Why should he be shot at then even by anarchists?"

When Mr. Roosevelt came out of the Milburn mansion last night a United States military officer, Major Mann, of the local post, shook hands with him.

"The last time I saw you," said

CAN YOU FIND THE FOX WHICH IS IN THE PICTURE?

Major Mann, "was in Cuba, just after a fight in which you took part."

"Oh, yes," cried the vice president, "I remember now. I'm so glad to see you, so glad," and then there were reminiscences with frequent handshakes.

Harrisburg, Sept. 11.—The plans for the ceremonies incident to the visit of the Pennsylvania commission to the Pan-American exposition, September 19 and 20, will probably be greatly modified by reason of the shooting of President McKinley. The original program contemplated the holding of Pennsylvania day ceremonies with speeches by Governor Stone and others in the temple of music.

In view of the painful interest which attaches to the hall by reason of the attack upon the president, it has been considered by the commissioners advisable to omit the ceremonies altogether. Instead, Governor Stone will receive the Pennsylvania visitors to the fair in a gallery in the reception hall of the Pennsylvania building and there will proably be no speeches.

ANARCHISTS NON-COMMITAL.

Two Arrested at Pittsburg Would Tell Little of Importance to the Police.

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—"Awaiting developments," was the bulletin of the detective bureau Tuesday in regard to Harry O. Gordon and Carl Nold, the local anarchists arrested Monday. It was expected that a secret service agent from Buffalo would reach here later in the day Tuesday to assist in "sweating" the men for information regarding Emma Goldman, and incidentally to try to connect the female anarchist with the plot to take the life of President McKinley.

In the event that the Buffalo officials do not come to Pittsburg, the men will be held pending developments in the case. The theory that a plot was formed to assassinate the president is the working basis of the officials who are so untiringly trying to unravel the affair. If this theory be correct, the statement of the assassin, Czolgosz, that it was Emma Goldman's teachings that persuaded him to commit the deed would, the police believe, have a tendency to connect the female anarchist with the actual shooting, although in an indirect way.

Gordon and Nold May Be Implicated.

Following the same course of reasoning, the police also believe that in the event of Emma Goldman being convicted of complicity in the crime then Gordon and Nold would be relatively guilty, as they are known to be intimate friends of the woman.

The fact that Emma Goldman was here not later than September 4, and that Gordon and Nold saw her on that date, together with the fact that Gordon acted as her agent here, convinces the local police that the two men now under arrest are conversant with her recent movements. A strenuous effort will be made to have the men tell what they know of her. The "third degree" will be given the men and the police hope to get some information which will aid them in their case against Emma Goldman. If this information can be had the police will be satisfied.

An interpreter will be secured to translate the papers and letters found in Gordon's house. Most of these letters are in German, but several are in Polish. The police are doubtful if the translation will result in any tangible evidence, but the chances that it may will not be overlooked.

TRUSTS IN GOD, DOES MRS. M'KINLEY.

President's Wife Locks for Favorable Outcome—Knows of the Shooting.

Buffalo, Sept. 11.—"We trust in God and believe Mr. McKinley is going to recover speedily. I know that he has the best of medical attendance that can be obtained and am perfectly satisfied that these doctors are handling the case splendidly. The case is progressing so that we are very happy."

Mrs. McKinley, wife of the president, said this Monday at the Milburn house just after the 4 o'clock bulletin of the physicians was issued.

Statements wer published Monday that she did not know an attempt had been made on her husband's life and that his indisposition had been explained to her by saying that he had been injured by a fall. This story met with a most sweping denial.

AGAINST SUNDAY VIOLATIONS.

Judge Hendrickson Came Out Strongly at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 11.—Supreme Court Justice Hendrickson exploded a bombshell in court when he charged the grand jury on the Sunday opening question. He said it was their duty to investigate the alleged barter and sale of licenses by certain members of the city council; that the saloon and hotel men should be indicted for persistently violating the Sunday laws, also that the mayor and chief of police could be indicted for misdemeanors for not carrying out the order of the court in failing to suppress the Sunday disorders.

The judge was direct in his words and left no doubt as to his feeling. He suggested that if the jurors felt that it would consume too much time to investigate the irregularities in city council they could adjourn from time to time at their convenience and summon each member before them. From the tone of the judge's charge, he wants a sweeping investigation of the license committee of common council, and the action of the mayor and chief of police. The jury has Congressman Gardner as its foreman. Considerable excitement has been caused in the city by the charge, as it is feared the jury will have to indict every saloon man in the city.

BIG INTERNATIONAL GAMES.

American and English Athletes Meet In New York Sept. 21.

The international athletic tournament to be held on Berkeley oval, New York, Sept. 21, will be one of the most interesting sporting events of the year. Athletes from Oxford and Cambridge, the leading English universities, will meet picked teams from Yale and Harvard, and these competitions, together with the America's cup races off Sandy Hook and the big rifle shooting tournament at Sea Girt, N. J., form a fitting climax to the greatest year of international sport on record. American athletes have been invading the British isles all summer, and the fact that the sons of John Bull made good showings against them and, in fact, thrashed them soundly in several branches of sport, lends additional attraction to the forthcoming carnival.

American experts state unhesitatingly that our boys have the best chance for capturing a majority of events against the Britishers. While the transatlantic cracks are particularly strong in long distance running and will probably annex the points standing for those tests, our athletes hold the balance of power in the dashes and short sprints. Pole vaults, high and low hurdles, hammer throws and shot puts are also at the mercy of Yale and Harvard.

A careful weighing of the comparative strength of Yale and Harvard warrants the prediction that Old Eli will carry off most of the honors and should place to the credit of the blue no less than four events. Harvard would then have to win but one event to bring victory to the Americans, as but nine events are scheduled. According to the rules that will govern the matches, firsts only are to count.

Yale men are training at Travers island, New York, the country home of the New York Athletic club, while wearers of the crimson have been rounding into form at North Cohasset, Mass., William C. Whitney having proffered the use of his Cape Cod summer establishment, which is equipped with extensive grounds and a fine running track. The Englishmen, who recently arrived in Boston, proceeded to Canada to compete against athletes of McGill and Toronto universities. Some of the prominent Britons who will appear in the New York tourney are G. R. Garnier, J. R. Cleave, E. E. B. May, J. B. Bulkeley, S. A. Neave, E. A. Dawson and Cornish, the brilliant sprinter.

THERE ARE MANY ROADS

The Finger Posts Marking the Many By-Paths of Present Day Troubles All Seem to Point the Same Way—Lack of Nerve Force.

Day-by-day the columns of this paper bring new evidence from East Liverpool people of the great work being done by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills—Why they accomplish so much is easily explained—they are prepared with an eye single to restoring Nerve Force—they accomplish this object which no other medicine in the world has ever been able to do—that's why hundreds of East Liverpool people offer their testimony.

Mr. Cyrus Hauselman, of No. 279 Sugar street, East Liverpool, O., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are a fine medicine. It has done for me more to cure my old rheumatism than anything I ever took. The rheumatism had hung on for five or six years and was all in the legs and shoulders. I could not sleep and at times could not move with the pain. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got them at Larkins' drug store, corner Sixth and East Market streets, and they took hold finely, something nothing else ever did—the pain and stiffness is about gone. I am feeling strong and get about and sleep well. It won't take many more to cure me completely."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine company, Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

BIG TIME AT BUFFALO.

Railroad Day at the Pan-American Exposition.

The second Saturday in September—the 14th—will be Railroad Day at the Pan-American Exposition. It promises to be one of the most interesting days of the great show at Buffalo. Elaborate arrangements have been completed for an interesting and novel demonstration. The grand parade on the Exposition grounds that day will be extremely unique and interesting. It will illustrate the different methods of transportation in use since Adam and Eve moved out of the Garden of Eden. There will be many striking novelties in the way of special features. Hon. Chauncey Depew will be one of the distinguished orators. The night illuminations and fireworks will be on a magnificent scale. The day and night festivities will be highly enjoyable for Pan-American visitors. Special low fares in effect over the Pennsylvania Lines will permit everybody to attend at small expense. For particulars about the cost of tickets, through time to Buffalo, etc., apply to nearest Ticket Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines. 69-ws-a.

Questions for Women

Do you have periodical pains? Do you have frequent backaches? Are you nervous? Are you continually exhausted? Do you suffer every month? If you answer "yes" to any of these questions you are suffering from ills which Wine of Cardui cures. Do you appreciate what perfect health would be to you? After taking Wine of Cardui, thousands like you have realized it. Wine of Cardui insures freedom from female diseases. At each recurring menstrual period, if care be not taken, slight ailments will appear. Nervous strain, loss of sleep, cold or indigestion start disorders which are not noticeable at first, but day by day steadily grow into troublesome complications. Wine of Cardui, used just before the menstrual period, will keep the female system in perfect condition and render it invulnerable to disease. The medicine is taken quietly at home. There is nothing like it to help women enjoy good health. Wine of Cardui costs only $1. Test this remedy, which is indorsed by 1,000,000 cured women.

WINE OF CARDUI

Cairo, Ky., Sept. 6, 1899.

I take pleasure in writing a few lines in praise of your wonderful medicine, Wine of Cardui. It is the best medicine I ever heard of. I am thirty-six years old and have been sick all my life. I had a dozen doctors, but none of them did me any good. I have taken one bottle of Wine of Cardui and will take another with Black-Draught. I have been married six years and have a baby five years old. I had womb and kidney trouble. My monthly period was so bad that sometimes it came twice a month. I was too sick to do work for a family of three. I was in bed when I got the bottle of Wine of Cardui. Now I am up and can do most of my work. When I was sick I could not sleep at night. I sleep well at night now. A friend of mine advised me to use Black-Draught with Wine of Cardui. Mrs. ETTA KILLMAN.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

The River Falling—The river continues to fall, the marks at the wharf this morning registering 4 1-2 feet. The Kanawha went down last night and the Avalon will be up tonight.

Hay Ride to Glasgow—The Jolly Nine club will take a hay ride to the McKenzie farm at Glasgow tonight. There will be refreshments served and the club, with their lady friends, will enjoy themselves until a late hour tomorrow morning.

Horse in the Race—W. A. Larkins left yesterday afternoon for Salem. Mr. Larkins has his horse, Robert L, entered in the races tomorrow, and William Timmons has his horse entered in the races for Friday. Mr. Timmons has been at Salem since Monday.

John Elliott in Lisbon Jail.

Lisbon, Sept. 11.—(Special)—John Elliott, of Irondale, was brought to jail here yesterday afternoon in default of $500 bail to await the action of the grand jury. His arrest was the result of an assault made recently on Harry Phillips at Wellsville.

No Special Train to Canton—Charles Walsh received information this morning from the C. & P. trainmaster at Wellsville that it would be impossible to run an excursion from this city to Canton next Sunday, owing to the heavy traffic incident to the G. A. R. encampment at Cleveland. A special rate can be secured, however, but it will be necessary for those taking advantage of the low rate to leave East Liverpool on the 12:36 Sunday morsing train.

GOING TO CANTON

East Liverpool Base Ball Team to Play Sunday in Stark County's Metropolis.

Charles Walsh, manager of the East Liverpool base ball team, closed the deal yesterday which insures a game next Sunday at Canton in which the Painesville-Canton team and the nine from this city will battle for supremacy. Mr. Walsh is making an effort to induce the Pennsylvania company to run a special train from here to Canton on Sunday morning. He feels assured that at least 300 people will accompany the ball team, as many of the sports here are anxious to see another game between the local and Painesville teams.

John Wallace, the efficient first baseman who has been a strong factor in the winning of the home team's many laurels, will play his last game of the season either Thursday or Friday of this week, when the P. A. C.'s are here. He will leave the city on Saturday to resume his studies in a college. Manager Walsh has not yet secured a man to take Wallace's place and he will doubtless find it difficult to get a player who will come near being the equal of the retiring first baseman.

A WOMAN IN THE CASE

A Highly Humorous Production Well Presented at the Grand.

Bartlett and May, experts in the art of fun-making, with a fairly competent company, produced "A Woman in the Case" before a large house at the Grand last night. The play is a favorite wherever it has been presented, and East Liverpool showed earnest and hearty appreciation of its merits. The company is far better than the average, and is sure of a cordial welcome here whenever it returns.

SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION

among us with hearts which never can be true to American institutions, and

Whereas, We have so repeatedly memorialized congress, have pleaded with our senators and representatives, and besought all who are in places of influence and power, for the enactment of such laws as will prevent the landing upon our shores of the vicious, lawless, pauperized and anarchistic elements of foreign countries, and

Whereas, Our just and reasonable prayers have thus far been denied, and people who stand for anarchy and misrule, have continued to come among us, to here utter and execute their lawlessness and disloyalty to both God and man, and openly trying to influence the administrative policies of the great centers of our population to the danger of life and property, and are threatening the fundamental principles of our government, and

Whereas, In addition to the foregoing, there is now in process of formation and development, an attack upon our system of public schools, with the purpose of bringing about a union of church and state to the extent that the public school funds may be divided and part thereof applied applied to the maintenance of parochial schools, and

Whereas, Our organization advocates one universal, non-sectarian free school system, a complete separation of church and state, laws preventing the immigration of unfit foreigners, and that no public moneys or property be applied to sectarian purposes, and

Whereas, We hold these several principles are paramount to any party affilitations and believe that only by united, intelligent, and patriotic action, can these principles be secured and perpetuated, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, in convention assembled, pledged our sacred honor never to vote for any man who is a candidate for any office within the gift of the people who is unwilling to subscribe to the principles above enumerated, and be it further

Resolved, That our state councillor promulgate these resolutions to the subordinate councils within its jurisdiction, with his official recommendation that they be faithfully obeyed because they are in harmony with the principles and purposes of our order; and be it further

Resolved, That our representatives to the national council be and are hereby instructed to sumbit the substance of these resolutions to our national council at its next meeting and urge such measures as will secure the united political action of our suffrage.

Whereas, the American people have again been terribly alarmed by the attempt to kill our chosen executive while he was extending to them those informal courtesies which thus far have distinguished us among all the nations of the world, and have tended to repress the harsh distinctions which otherwise may arise about place and power; and

Whereas, We believe that our beloved president has in all the trying times of his administration been devoted to the maintenance of a government which would have within it all the good the fathers foresaw or their posterity achieved; a government which would be in the foremost rank of the whole world's progress, and should all the while be and forever remain a government of the people, by the people and for the people; therefore be it

Resolved, By the state council of Ohio, Junior Order United American Mechanics, in convention duly assembled, at the opening of our deliberations, that we express profound regret that so infamous an act should have been attempted upon the president, and we extend to him our heartiest sympathy, assuring him that we earnestly hope for his speedy recovery and restoration to his family and his country; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be mailed to the president, that they be spread upon the journal and that they be given to the press for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN A. BLISS.

We approve and recommend the adoption.

It was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

A large number of other resolutions of more or less importance to the organization were presented by the committee and in a majority of cases the judgment of the committee proved to be the sense of the convention.

The delegates only lingered at the hall long enough to attend to the committee work, if they had any, and departed for their quarters to arrange for the outing at Rock Springs.

THE YEAR'S PROGRESS

ONE REASON WHY IT FAILED TO MEET EXPECTATIONS.

Weak Councils Suffered in Consequence of a Handicap.

The administration which closes today was a fairly successful one, and although many things occurred which handicapped those at the head of the state council, their reports show that some progress was made. One of the principal causes for the lack of advancement is shown by the following from the report of the state councillor:

"At the last session $500 was appropriated to the use of the state councillor for the purpose of organizing new councils. But the state council had scarcely adjourned until we received from the national council secretary, a notice that a special per capita of 15 cents had been levied by the national council to meet a deficiency in the expense of the national orphans' home. Of this the finance committee had no knowledge and had made no apportionment to meet, the board of officers immediately called an extra assessment to meet this emergency, which many of the councils paid promptly, others more reluctantly, and some, I am sorry to say, never paid.

"For this reason the state councillor did not feel disposed to use this $500 and perhaps cause a deficiency at the end of the year, consequently many weak councils had to suffer and some became defunct, and we have been handicapped in our work of organizing new councils."

ENTITLED TO THE BANNER

Sherrodsville Council, With a Gain of 160 Per Cent, Wins It.

Under a resolution of the state council, Jr. O. U. A. M., adopted in 1897, page 892, of the official proceedings, the prize banner is to be awarded to the council showing the greatest per cent of gain in membership during the year. The following three councils show a gain of 100 per cent:

Bunker Hill council, No. 87, 160 per cent.

Lockland council, No. 115, 134 per cent.

Valley council, No. 140, 107 per cent.

Bunker Hill council, No. 87, of Sherrodsville, having made the greatest gain, is therefore entitled to the banner the coming year.

A large number of councils were in the competition, but their percentage was low as compared with the above.

The officers are also looking for Gray and Dye, who figured in the fight and who are now in Chester.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS

In the East End And Helena Ordered By State Inspector to Be Repaired.

Mayor Davidson is in receipt of a communication from J. W. Knaub, chief inspector of workshops and factories, in which the city executive is instructed to have a new furnace placed in the Horace Mann school building in Helena. The inspector also states that the fire escape of the East End school building must be newly painted with not less than two coats.

It is not known when the inspector visited East Liverpool, Mayor Davidson not having even been apprised of the man's operations here until his receipt of the letter instructing him to attend to the work above stated. Secretary Hill, of the board of education, has been notified of the inspector's orders, and they will be carried out as soon as possible.

Miss Margaret B. Needham Becomes the Wife of Benjamin B. Brockett.

Miss Margaret B. Needham, of this city, and Mr. Benjamin R. Brockett, of Wellsville, were quietly married at high noon yesterday by Rev. J. W. Gorrell, at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Samuel Stewart, on Calcutta road. An elegant dinner was served after the ceremony.

The bride is a well known and estimable young lady, while the groom is very prominent among Wellsville's foremost young men. Mr. and Mrs. Brockett will make their future home in Cleveland.

Lisbon Lecture Course.

Lisbon, Sept. 11.—(Special)—The Young People's lecture society of Lisbon has been formed. Final arrangements were made last night and a course laid out at a meeting at the home of Hon. C. S. Speaker. John Temple Graves, of Atlanta, and Dr. R. S. McArthur have been secured as lecturers.

Elliott Taken to Lisbon.

John Elliott, who assaulted Harry Phillips several days ago, was taken to the Lisbon jail by Chief Morrissey. He was unable to furnish the required bond to Mayor Dennis to secure his liberty. Attorney Frank Lones has been secured by the Amalgamated Association to defend Elliott at his trial in common pleas court.

The Chinaman's Dress.

Those who understand the subject have to admit that when it comes to the question of rational dress the Chinaman has very much the best of it. American clothes are not made for the performance of much stooping or domestic gymnastics, but the Chinaman, in his loose, easy fitting clothes, is as free to stoop, jump, run or turn handsprings as a small boy in bathing. In a Chinese suit of clothes you can lie down and sleep with the same amount of comfort that you can stand up and walk.

Comets of the Past Century.

During the nineteenth century 235 new comets were discovered as against 62 in the eighteenth century. The nineteenth century also beheld a greater number of large and brilliant comets than did its predecessor. The finest of these were the comets of 1811, 1843, 1858, 1881 and 1882. In the year 1800 only one periodical comet was known, Halley's. Now many are known, of which at least 17 have been seen at more than one return to perihelion.

Why We Bathe.

Professor Vivian Lewes, at the London Institution, recently furnished the following answer to the question, "Why do we bathe?" Twenty-eight miles of sweat glands in our skin are discharging 26 ounces of water per day and leaving upon the outer surface of the skin a full ounce of solid matter. These are aided by the oil glands of the hair, which facilitate the adherence of external dirt. Hence the refreshing character of the morning bath and the necessity for grease absorbing alkalies in soap.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

The River Falling—The river continues to fall, the marks at the wharf this morning registering 4 1-2 feet. The Kanawha went down last night and the Avalon will be up tonight.

Hay Ride to Glasgow—The Jolly Nine club will take a hay ride to the McKenzie farm at Glasgow tonight. There will be refreshments served and the club, with their lady friends, will enjoy themselves until a late hour tomorrow morning.

Horse in the Race—W. A. Larkins left yesterday afternoon for Salem. Mr. Larkins has his horse, Robert L, entered in the races tomorrow, and William Timmons has his horse entered in the races for Friday. Mr. Timmons has been at Salem since Monday.

John Elliott in Lisbon Jail.

Lisbon, Sept. 11.—(Special)—John Elliott, of Irondale, was brought to jail here yesterday afternoon in default of $500 bail to await the action of the grand jury. His arrest was the result of an assault made recently on Harry Phillips at Wellsville.

No Special Train to Canton—Charles Walsh received information this morning from the C. & P. trainmaster at Wellsville that it would be impossible to run an excursion from this city to Canton next Sunday, owing to the heavy traffic incident to the G. A. R. encampment at Cleveland. A special rate can be secured, however, but it will be necessary for those taking advantage of the low rate to leave East Liverpool on the 12:36 Sunday morsing train.

GOING TO CANTON

East Liverpool Base Ball Team to Play Sunday in Stark County's Metropolis.

Charles Walsh, manager of the East Liverpool base ball team, closed the deal yesterday which insures a game next Sunday at Canton in which the Painesville-Canton team and the nine from this city will battle for supremacy. Mr. Walsh is making an effort to induce the Pennsylvania company to run a special train from here to Canton on Sunday morning. He feels assured that at least 300 people will accompany the ball team, as many of the sports here are anxious to see another game between the local and Painesville teams.

John Wallace, the efficient first baseman who has been a strong factor in the winning of the home team's many laurels, will play his last game of the season either Thursday or Friday of this week, when the P. A. C.'s are here. He will leave the city on Saturday to resume his studies in a college. Manager Walsh has not yet secured a man to take Wallace's place and he will doubtless find it difficult to get a player who will come near being the equal of the retiring first baseman.

A WOMAN IN THE CASE

A Highly Humorous Production Well Presented at the Grand.

Bartlett and May, experts in the art of fun-making, with a fairly competent company, produced "A Woman in the Case" before a large house at the Grand last night. The play is a favorite wherever it has been presented, and East Liverpool showed earnest and hearty appreciation of its merits. The company is far better than the average, and is sure of a cordial welcome here whenever it returns.

among us with hearts which never can be true to American institutions, and

Whereas, We have so repeatedly memorialized congress, have pleaded with our senators and representatives, and besought all who are in places of influence and power, for the enactment of such laws as will prevent the landing upon our shores of the vicious, lawless, pauperized and anarchistic elements of foreign countries, and

Whereas, Our just and reasonable prayers have thus far been denied, and people who stand for anarchy and misrule, have continued to come among us, to here utter and execute their lawlessness and disloyalty to both God and man, and openly trying to influence the administrative policies of the great centers of our population to the danger of life and property, and are threatening the fundamental principles of our government, and

Whereas, In addition to the foregoing, there is now in process of formation and development, an attack upon our system of public schools, with the purpose of bringing about a union of church and state to the extent that the public school funds may be divided and part thereof applied applied to the maintenance of parochial schools, and

Whereas, Our organization advocates one universal, non-sectarian free school system, a complete separation of church and state, laws preventing the immigration of unfit foreigners, and that no public moneys or property be applied to sectarian purposes, and

Whereas, We hold these several principles are paramount to any party affilitations and believe that only by united, intelligent, and patriotic action, can these principles be secured and perpetuated, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, in convention assembled, pledged our sacred honor never to vote for any man who is a candidate for any office within the gift of the people who is unwilling to subscribe to the principles above enumerated, and be it further

Resolved, That our state councillor promulgate these resolutions to the subordinate councils within its jurisdiction, with his official recommendation that they be faithfully obeyed because they are in harmony with the principles and purposes of our order; and be it further

Resolved, That our representatives to the national council be and are hereby instructed to sumbit the substance of these resolutions to our national council at its next meeting and urge such measures as will secure the united political action of our suffrage.

Why We Bathe.

Professor Vivian Lewes, at the London institution, recently furnished the following answer to the question, "Why do we bathe?" Twenty-eight miles of sweat glands in our skin are discharging 26 ounces of water per day and leaving upon the outer surface of the skin a full ounce of solid matter. These are aided by the oil glands of the hair, which facilitate the adherence of external dirt. Hence the refreshing character of the morning bath and the necessity for grease absorbing alkalies in soap.
